Village Green future discussed at forum

By HELEN MANSFIELD
hmansfield@nwnewsgroup.com

LINDHURST — A mixed bag of Lindenhurst residents and business owners received updates from representatives with the Lindenhurst Village Green development last week.

Nearly 250 residents attended Lindenhurst's forum on Nov. 13, at St. Mark's Education Center on the mixed-use facility that would be on Routes 45 and 132.

The village approved annexation and rezoning ordinances for the nearly 200-acre facility about eight months ago.

Charlie Hickcox, development director with OliverMcMillan, said the retail plan for Village Green is upscale, similar to what was built in Deer Park.

Attendees wanted particulars about which retailers would be some of the upscale tenants. They also voiced concern about potential pollution and increased traffic.

At this point, Hickcox said, no retailer has stepped up to occupy any of the three proposed anchor locations.

He thinks retailers will be secured early in 2008.

"OliverMcMillan's collaborative planning process incorporates input from several highly-interested national retailers, village officials and industry experts," Hickcox stated in a previous press release.

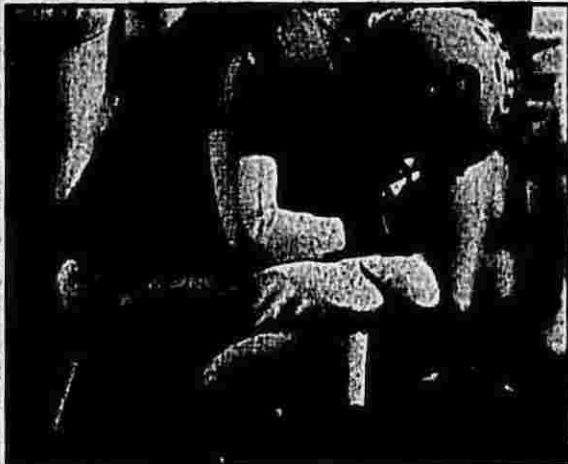

Luigi DeAngelis, of Lindenhurst's One Park Place Ventures, said he is friends with hotel moguls, the Marriott family, and has been in discussion with them about building a hotel on the property.

Spokeswoman Mahste O'Leary, with OliverMcMillan, said DeAngelis has not presented any formal documents to this point.

"Groundbreaking is slated for spring 2008, in order to work out a site plan modification that will accommodate multiple anchors," O'Leary stated in a press release. "Project opening is planned for late summer of 2009."

Residential builders Westminster Swanson and The O'Leary Companies plan to build between 700 and 800 housing units.

Thanksgiving an important time to give

It's easy to get caught up in the commercial hype of the holidays. Every time you turn on the TV, you see advertisements for jewelry and cars with big bows on top and toys and pretty much anything else imaginable.

These ads seem to come sooner and sooner every year. They used to wait until after Thanksgiving but now it's more like after Halloween.

Now, I don't want to get too cheesy or sound like Jimmy Stewart at the end of "It's a Wonderful Life" or anything, but that shouldn't be the focus of the holidays. And when we're bombarded with sentiments that tell us that IS what the holidays are about, we should try to avoid believing the hype.

In this week's Journals we have a couple stories that focus on the importance of charity and selflessness, which, to me, are the more worthwhile aspects of this time of year.

In the County section you will find a story by Yadira Sanchez Olson about the Northern Illinois

Food Bank's Lake County branch and what that organization is doing to make sure needy families still get a holiday meal.

The food bank, which covers 13 counties in the state, is organizing a holiday meal box program in which an estimated 27,000 families will get a package that includes a turkey, stuffing, potatoes and vegetables.

The program runs through Dec. 18 and donations can be made by calling 630-443-6910 or visiting the organization's Web site at www.northernillinoisfoodbank.org.

And that's not the only group that is working to benefit people in need.

A story by Jessica Jacobsen appears in some editions of the Journals this week about a group of Antioch students who put together nonperishable care packages for soldiers fighting in Iraq.

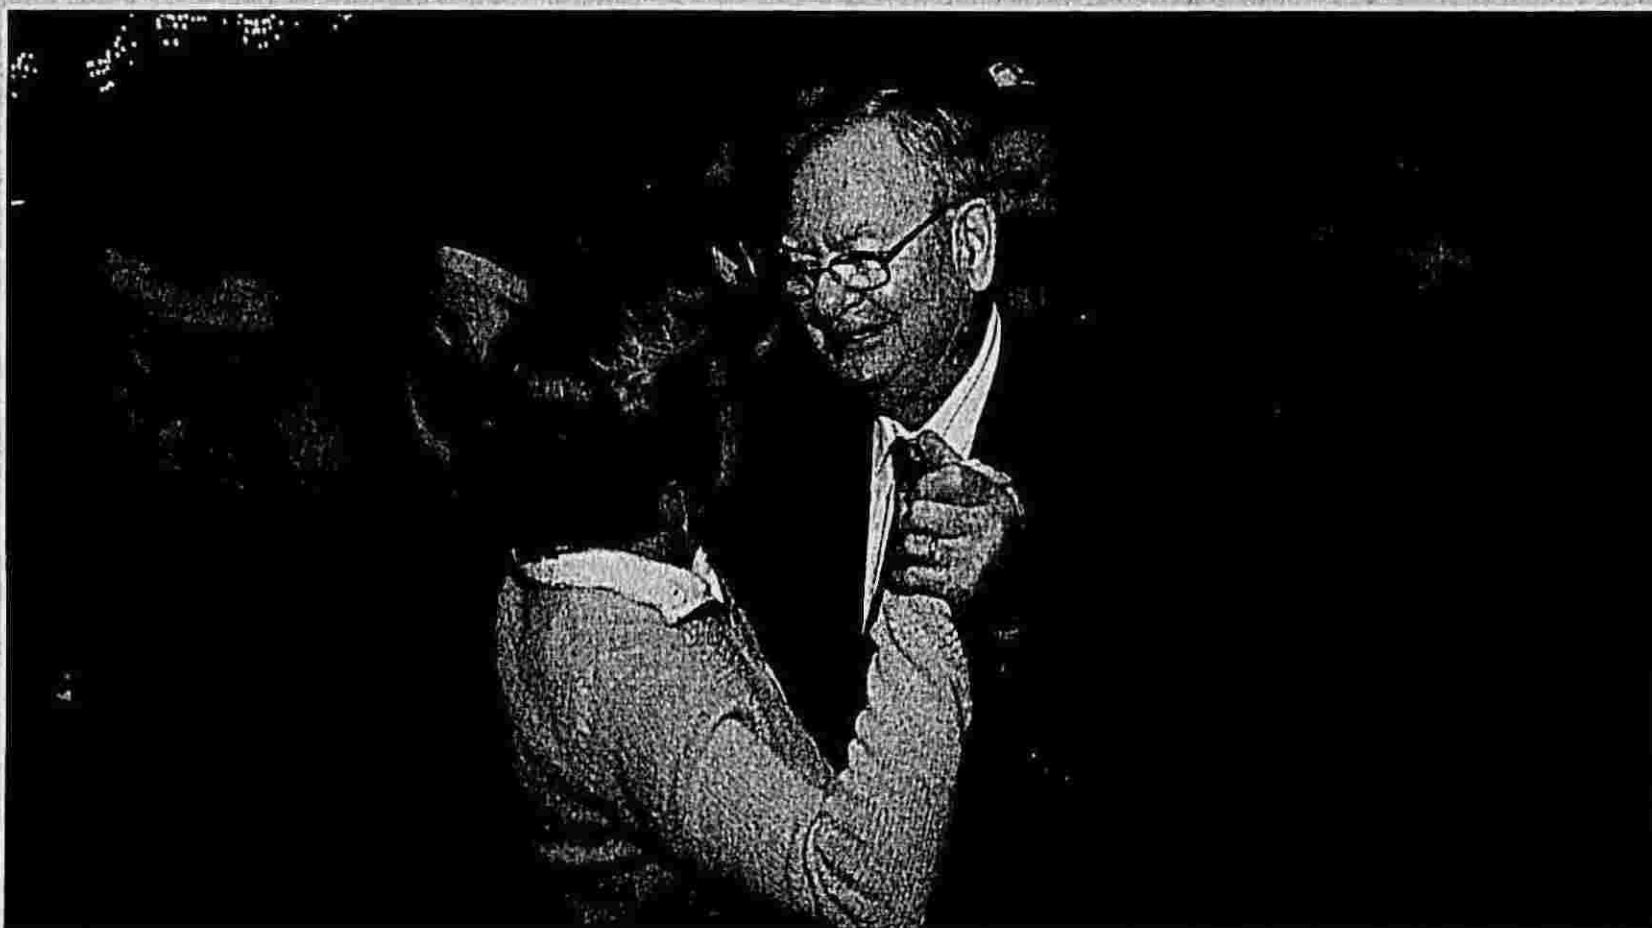

Examples of charitable efforts can be found all over the county. Contact food pantries in your area or call your township office to find out how you can help.

You can also e-mail me at mpera@nwnewsgroup.com if you need help tracking down a local program worthy of donations.

Packed and ready to go

Members of Cub Scout Pack 190, in Antioch, help pack Christmas care packages at the Veteran of Foreign Wars Post 4551 in Antioch. The care packages are for soldiers from Antioch who are stationed in Iraq. Other troops that volunteered were Cub Scout Pack 92 and Brownie Troop 1130. The Ladies Auxiliary sponsored the event.

Antioch VFW Ladies Auxiliary send care packages

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH — Inside the Antioch Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4551 building Nov. 15, it looked like a party was taking place.

But actually, Cub Scout and Brownie troops gathered to help pack Christmas care packages for soldiers in Iraq.

Decked out in their uniforms, the boys and girls seemed to enjoy packing items for the troops such as gum, candy, toiletries, and more.

The event was organized by the Ladies Auxiliary VFW Post 4551. Barbara Gray, president of the Ladies Auxiliary, said that 200 boxes were sent to soldiers. Care packages were mailed Nov. 17.

"[The soldiers] have bare essentials, and they have to carry what they have to carry in their pockets," Gray said about why the VFW sent care packages.

Items collected came from Antioch schools, local businesses, and the College of Lake County.

"Without this, our children will never learn patriotism."

Barbara Gray

President of the Ladies Auxiliary VFW Post 4551

Included with the boxes were cards from kids in Cub Scout troop 190, Cub Scout troop 92, and Brownie troop 1130. There also were cards from students in the Antioch school districts who donated food to the VFW.

Thirty two kids came to the Antioch VFW that night to help with the care packages.

"We were expecting, like, 11 to 15 kids," Gray said.

Gray seemed pleased to see all the kids show up to help prepare the boxes for the troops.

"Without this, our children will never learn patriotism," she said.

After the kids finished packing the care packages, they made cards for the soldiers. Gray and Stefanie Faber, Brownie troop 1130 leader, smiled as they read what the kids wrote.

Faber said she thought having the girls participate with the VFW was a good way to get them involved in the community.

"There's not a lot of opportunities for first-grade girls to give back to their community," she said.

James Fogg, assistant den leader for Cub Scout pack 190, said he thought this was a good opportunity for the boys as well, and added that it was a good time.

"For the most part, they all are pretty excited," he said.

The care packages will go to 23 units in Iraq, Gray said. Though the Ladies Auxiliary is not planning another large shipment of packages, Gray said, the group will mail boxes based on requests.

Sending care packages can be pricey, so the Ladies Auxiliary is looking at some fundraiser ideas for February. Two that Gray mentioned are a polar plunge and a chili bake-off.

Dancing through life

Lindenhurst resident reflects on her time as a Rockette

By HELEN MANSFIELD
hmansfield@nwnewsgroup.com

LINDENHURST – At age 92, Dorthie Mae Brumund is a petite woman with cottony white hair. She might be hard of hearing, but she is still mentally sharp, and her eyes dance when she speaks – especially when the topic is dancing.

Born in Grayslake, Dorthie Mae grew up in Waukegan, the daughter of John Maxwell, a dairy farmer. As a young girl, she loved to dance.

"My mother always used to tell me, 'Dorthie Mae, will you please sit down?'" Dorthie Mae said.

At age 17, her mother noticed she could dance and that she wanted to. Her parents allowed her to pursue a career in dance, so Dorthie Mae hit the road.

"I had good parents who knew how to handle me," she said.

Dorthie Mae's adventures performing in the vaudeville circuit took her all around the country, and she even met comedy greats William "Bud" Abbott and Lou Costello.

Like most vaudeville performers, Dorthie Mae also played an instrument, the saxophone, which her daughter Cindy Caldwell said was "bigger than she was."

In all of Dorthie Mae's adventures, she never left the continental U.S. As she earned money, Dorthie Mae sent it back to the family so her sister Jane could go to college.

Cindy said her mother always had hearing problems, and was diagnosed with otosclerosis at a young age. Dorthie Mae has no hearing in one ear, and only 25 percent in the other, so she has always worn hearing aids. When Dorthie Mae danced, she said she felt the drum beats through the floor.

Sometime during the Great Depression, Dorthie Mae had heard the world famous Radio City Rockettes were having auditions. She tried out in Chicago, and earned a second audition in New York.

She stayed with the group for one year, including its famous Christmas performance. Cindy said Dorthie Mae went back to New York in the 1980s to see the Rockettes perform again.

Dorthie Mae has a shadow box with a photo of her as a young dancer, with her ballet toe shoes.

"I was a natural red head," she said.

After her time on the road, Dorthie Mae opened a dance studio in Waukegan.

"I loved teaching the little kids ballet and tap," she said.

Former Rockette dancer Dorthie Mae Brumund, 92, sits in her Lindenhurst home.

"I don't dance anymore, the girls and my doctor said I could fall."

She left teaching when she met and married Alvin Brumund.

"He was a great man; everyone knew Buster [her husband]," Dorthie Mae said.

In August of 2000, Dorthie Mae moved to The Village at Victory Lakes in Lindenhurst. She said she loves it, and Cindy is happy to have her there.

"The staff and meals are fantastic around here, and the programs are very nice," Dorthie Mae said.

Dorthie Mae recently served as a judge for facility's version of "Dancing with the Stars," called "Dancing With Seniors," which she enjoyed. Village residents performed with students from the College of Lake County.

"I would have loved to have gotten up and say 'let's do it this way,'" she said.

The TV program has become her favorite show, but Dorthie Mae doesn't have a favorite performing pair.

"I'm only interested in each performance; they're all so good," she said. "I feel so bad when they slip and fall – we've all done that."

Dorthie Mae said she's surprised at her own longevity, saying her parents didn't live to be the age she is.

But Cindy told Dorthie Mae it's because she takes care of herself.

"I like what I eat, and I eat what's good," Dorthie Mae said.

She drank champagne on occasion, but didn't drink or smoke, she said.

"She's led a long, interesting life," Cindy said of her mother. "She's fun, aside from being my mother."

About Dorthie Mae

Dorthie Mae was married to Alvin L. Brumund, who owned the Genesee Theater in Waukegan. His father, A.L. Brumund, was one of three partners who had built the Genesee in 1916, and died after the Great Stock Market Crash of 1929.

The family sold the theater in 1982. A.L. and Dorthie Mae's father both owned dairies, which is how the couple met. Alvin died in 1982.

The couple had three children: Cindy Caldwell, of Madison, Wis.; Charon Nevel, of Antioch; and Lorelee Brumund, of Mazonie, Wis. Dorthie Mae has eight grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

In 1984, Dorthie Mae married Alvin's cousin, Paul Brumund. A practicing attorney, Paul died in 2000.

Homeowners wait for updates

By HELEN MANSFIELD
hmansfield@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – Christine Evans calls Neumann's recent filing for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection as "quite a mess."

Evans is the president Vanguard Community Management in Schaumburg, the community management association hired by Neumann Homes to oversee both NeuHaven and the Clublands of Antioch developments.

"There's not a lot we can do, but update the homeowners," Evans said.

Each development has specific issues facing it. Evans said Vanguard can't help with warranty issues on individual homes, but has been hosting town-hall-style meetings to allow residents to vent.

About 50 percent of each development's homes are complete, and homeowners association boards (HOA) haven't been established, Evans said.

With NeuHaven, Evans said, the development would have three homeowners associations; there would be one HOA for the single-family homes, another for the town houses, and a third "master" HOA that would oversee the development's common areas.

Evans said Illinois law requires that a development be 75 percent sold and closed before turning responsibilities over to a HOA. At this time she said "there are no decision makers."

Neumann has set up a temporary board, which consists of its own employees, but the number of Neumann employees dwindles every day, Evans said.

She said that the NeuHaven's single-family homes are near 70 percent sold and closed, but adds that Vanguard has retained an attorney to make sure that figure doesn't include any of the town houses.

In the case of the Clublands of Antioch, Evans said, the property has a foundation established for what was supposed to serve as a clubhouse.

But, Neumann could decide to sell it and all existing common areas to a new developer, who will finish what was started.

Evans said ultimately, Neumann Homes "will do what is in its best interest."

"There's so much tension. I understand the frustration, but we have to stick with our guidelines," Evans said.

New homes await some horses involved in semitrailer accident

By HELEN MANSFIELD
hmansfield@nwnewsgroup.com

WADSWORTH – With the worst behind them, the "Wadsworth horses" headed to new homes last week.

The 41 surviving horse had taken up temporary residence at Carney Farm in Wadsworth, after what has been described as a horrific accident.

The horses were being transported in a double-decker semitrailer on Oct. 27, through the Wadsworth area.

James E. Anderson, 34, of McLeod, N.D., said he was driving 59 horses from Indiana to Minneapolis for auction. Anderson ran a red light on Route 41, near Wadsworth Road, struck a pickup truck and then rolled.

Lake County Sheriff's Department charged Anderson with disobeying a traffic-control device and failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Agents with the state and federal Department of

How to help

Donations can be made to HARPS through the organization's Web site www.harpson-line.org.

Agriculture are investigating to see whether more charges will be filed. Eighteen horses were killed or euthanized after the accident.

Donna Ewing, founder and president of the Hooved Animal Rescue and Protection Society in Barrington, was put in charge of finding homes for the remaining horses. HARPS was given ownership of the horses from Great West Casualty Insurance.

"We received 200 applications, and 100 of them were extremely qualified," Ewing said.

Ewing said the plan was to find homes within 50 miles of Wadsworth, so they can continue to receive care from the same veterinarians who saw them after the crash.

Fox Waterway Board considers new boating rules

Fox Waterway Board of Directors discussed possible new rules about boating noise on the Chain O' Lakes and Fox River for next season.

No conclusions were reached, and the meeting is set to continue 6:30 p.m. on Dec. 13 at McHenry Municipal Center.

"The last time, it was just modifications, but this time, [now] there would be dramatic change," FWA Executive Director Ingrid Enriquez said.

Speed and safety and possible no-wake zones were among discussion points at the Nov. 8 FWA meeting.

Northern Illinois Offshore Club, the FWA advisory committee, and McHenry and Lake County sheriffs and Illinois Conservation Police were on hand.

Northern Illinois Food Bank Holiday Meal Box program continues to grow

By YADIRA SANCHEZ OLSON
ysanchez@nwnewsgroup.com

Food for thought

This time of year, school children trace their tiny palms to make turkeys and write on them sentiments like – "I'm thankful for my baby brother and my toys."

And people sit down at the table to share Thanksgiving dinner with family and friends.

Then the food comes up in the many things to be grateful for.

And many people say they are fortunate for the abundance of dishes at their table that day, and for the meals of every other day of the week.

But for many other families, food is not something they can say they're thankful

The Holiday Meal Boxes carry enough food to feed a family of eight. They include a 12- to 14-pound turkey, stuffing, potatoes, vegetables, and dessert.

The program will continue through Dec. 8.

for. Because food is not something they have; not for Thanksgiving or any other nights.

The Northern Illinois Food Bank helps these people who go hungry every day.

This holiday season will be the seventh year the NIFB will continue its Holiday Meal Box Program.

Restaurant, bar owners learn how to quit smoking

Lake County Health Department hosts Smoke-Free Illinois seminar for businesses

By JOSEPH MULLER
jmuller@nwnewsgroup.com

The Lake County Health Department had a seminar Nov. 14 to help bar and restaurant owners adapt to the Illinois Smoke-Free Illinois Act.

The conference, at Mickey Finn's Brewery in Libertyville, informed owners of the specific rules of the act, and also offered a chance for them to pick up materials for educating customers.

The Illinois Smoke-Free Act, going into effect on Jan. 1, 2008, prohibits any employee or citizen from smoking inside or near any enclosed public buildings or work places.

Anyone caught smoking inside any public building or 15 feet within any of the building's windows, entrances, exits, or air vents will be fined from $100 to $250. Establishments are required to have non-smoking signs near every one of their entrances.

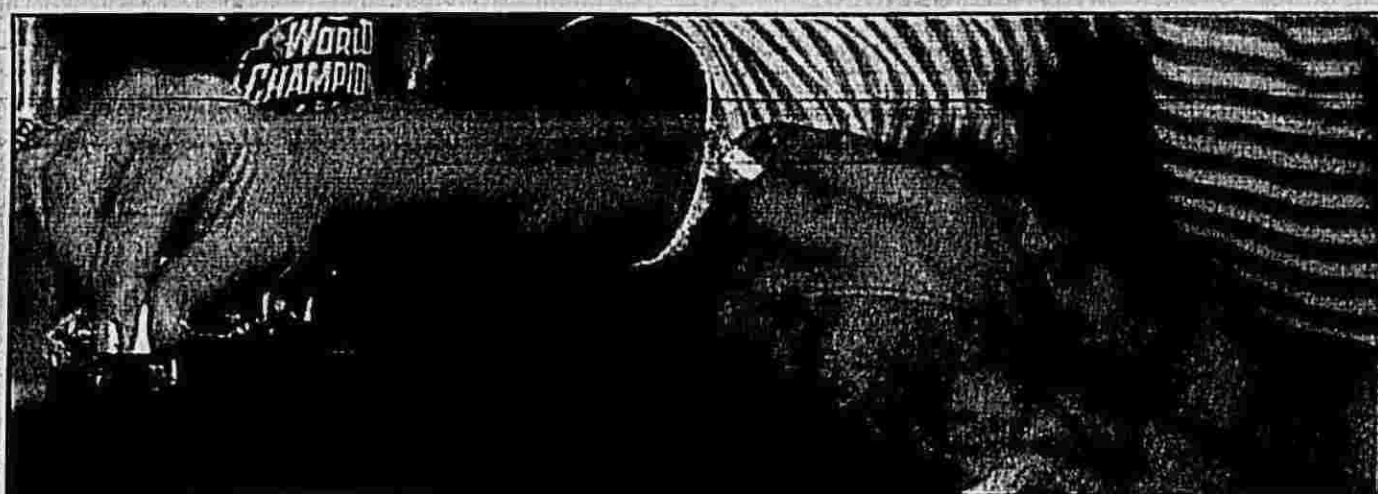

Enforcement of this act is on a complaint basis. If a person calls their local health department, an investigation will begin, and the appropriate fines will be enforced.

The smoke-free act passed by the state cites a study done by Surgeon General Vice Admiral Richard H. Carmona, which cited the negative effects of second hand smoke – lung cancer, heart disease, and respiratory illnesses – as indisputable.

Smoke-free laws are effective, according to the study, in preventing second hand smoke exposure. With Illinois becoming the 22nd state to pass a smoke-free act, such statewide legislation is beginning to develop into a nationwide trend.

Kristine Anderson, coordinator for the health department's Tobacco Free Lake County, explained the basic aspects of the act during the seminar. Afterward bar and restaurant owners were able to voice their potential worries.

"People get concerned when you tell them how to run their business," Anderson said.

Pictured is a patron at The Sequoit Creek Lodge in Antioch. The Sequoit Creek Lodge is one of the many businesses that will be affected by the Smoke-Free Illinois Act that will go into effect Jan. 1, 2008.

For more information about Smoke-Free Illinois, call Tobacco Free Lake County at 847-377-8090. Also visit www.smokefreeillinois.org.

During the conference, some bar and restaurant owners said they were worried about being held responsible for citizens smoking in their establishments.

Owners of restaurants and bars pay heavier fine than Illinois citizens, paying no less than $250 for the first violation, not less than $500 for the second, and not less than $2,500 for each additional violation within one year after the first offense. These fines are imposed regardless of whether the owners knew a person was smoking.

Many bar and restaurant owners also expressed concern about whether this act would cut into their revenue. In response, Health Educator Barbara de Nekker cited various studies in which smoking bans not only raised restaurant and bar revenue, but also decreased maintenance and insurance costs.

However, some bar and restaurant owners still voiced their concerns.

Robert Casey, co-owner of Casey's Corner in Waukegan, said he heard about bars closing in Springfield after that city banned smoking. He also said that January – a normally slow time of business for bars – was a bad month to begin enforcing the act.

"[After the conference] I have no more questions. I also have no more faith in the government looking out for me," said Casey's Corner co-owner Robin Gorsuch.

Other bar and restaurant owners in the crowd asked about how to deal with smoking employees. Anderson said owners need to be supportive of workers who smoke, by offering them quitting resources provided by the Lake County Health Department.

To help educate the public about the act, The American Cancer Society will work with local health departments to advertise the specifics of the bill. ACS spokeswoman Jennifer Briggs said the advertising program will start Nov. 26.

A sub-prime mortgage scandal seems to be reminiscent of the savings and loan scandal back in the 1980s, columnist John Matijevich writes. The only difference is this time the lenders aren't federally guaranteed if the buyers can't afford to pay the increased payments. Maybe the government should interject and stop this from happening again.

Food bank more than doubles meal boxes

According to Susan Ericson, the NIFB's Resource Development Director, in 2001, the program's first year, they helped to feed 3,500 area families. And since then the program has rapidly increased.

Two years ago, the Holiday Meal Box Program helped nearly 12,800 families, according to Ericson.

And this year the NIFB has more than doubled the meal boxes.

"This year we filled an order of 27,000 holiday meal boxes, which will feed 216,000 people in 13 counties," Ericson said.

Those orders came from more than 520 food pantries, shelters, soup kitchens, and nonprofit food assistance sites in 13 counties of northern Illinois, including Lake, McHenry, Kane, and DuPage counties.

One of the assistance sites that benefits from the NIFB is Catholic Charities in Waukegan.

This year Catholic Charities will provide 245 holiday meal boxes to people in need of food from now until the end of the year.

"We were able to purchase the 245 meal boxes with donations from Prince of Peace Parish in Lake Villa," said Thomas Ebert, Food Pantry Coordinator of The Catholic Charities.

Ebert said each week 30 to 60 families help with the holiday meal boxes, but hundreds more get turned down because there just aren't enough.

"We always welcome monetary donations and nonperishable food items," said Ebert.

People can also help by donating their time at the NIFB.

"We always need volunteers, all the time, not just this [holiday] season," Ericson said.

Doctor reconsiders village candidacy

Former Fox Lake village president faces civil suit for alleged battery

By SARAH SUTSCHEK
ssutschek@nwherald.com

FOX LAKE - A Fox Lake doctor who announced his candidacy for village president in the 2009 election is unsure whether he will run after a former Ingleside resident filed a recent civil lawsuit alleging battery against him.

"Up until today I kind of thought I would step up and offer my services to the community," said Dr. William Dam, who was the village president from 1985 to 1989. "I'm 65 [years old] in two weeks; maybe I'll just hang it all up."

Tami Propst, 45, who since has moved to Missouri, said Dam touched her inappropriately in a sexual manner when she took her son for an exam Nov. 16, 2006, at Dam's practice at 214 Washington St.

"He went up under her shirt; he inappropriately touched her under her shirt, pushed her onto the examining table, [and] made an attempt to kiss her," Propst's attorney, Shawn Warner said. "She at that point in time got out of the situation, left, and made a police report."

The state's attorney declined to go forward with criminal charges because it would have come down to "he said, she said," Warner said.

Propst was suing for more than $50,000, Warner said.

Propst also alleged that Dam made inappropriate advances about a week before when she went for a flu shot. She said Dam hugged her for an uncomfortable length of time and leaned his face in like he was going to kiss her.

Dam denies the allegations and said that money is the motivation behind the lawsuit, because Propst recently had experienced personal, medical and financial hardships.

"I'm not going to let 40 years go down the drain," Dam said. "It's all insane and I feel bad for this lady, but she is on record of having accused other doctors of doing this."

Dam said he recalls the day and time that the second alleged incident occurred. It was at about 3 p.m. on a busy day with about 18 scheduled patients and four of them in exam rooms. There is no soundproofing between the walls, no locks on the doors and there were five employees working at the time, he said.

Propst said she was filing the lawsuit because she hoped other women would come forward.

"The reason basically that we filed a suit is because I'm 100 percent sure that I am not the only person this happened to," she said. "It has been a horrible year. When something like that happens to a female, you don't get over it in a year."

In addition to his years as Fox Lake village president, Dam also was a director for the Fox Waterway Agency for eight years.

Northwest Herald reporter Jocelyn Allison contributed to this report.

Lake County Health Department offers flu shots

In conjunction with National Influenza Vaccination Week, Nov. 26 through Dec. 2, the Lake County Health Department/Community Health Center is reminding all residents to get their flu shot this year.

Vaccinations are still available through the Health Department's Immunization Clinic, 2303 Dodge Ave. in Waukegan, according to a release from the health department.

"It's not too late to get your flu shot. In fact, it's one of the most important health measures you can take to protect yourself and your family from becoming ill," Dale Galassie, the Health Department's executive director, said in a statement. "We also want to emphasize the importance of washing your hands, covering your cough and staying home if you're sick."

It is important that people 65 and older bring their Medicare part B cards to the clinics, which will cover the cost of the flu vaccine, according to the release.

Medicaid and All Kids also will be accepted. Fees are $35 for the flu vaccine and $45 for the pneumonia vaccine.

Any Lake County resident older than the age of six months is eligible to get a flu shot through the Health Department, according to the release.

Call 847-377-8470 for times when flu vaccination is available at the clinic.

In addition, a listing of local clinics is available on the Health Department's Web site, www.co.lake.il.us/health, or you can ask your health care provider.

'Cool Globe' comes to cultural center

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

NORTH CHICAGO - To help increase environmental awareness in Lake County, Abbott Laboratories has donated a "Cool Globes" sculpture. The sculpture is from a recent outdoor public art exhibit in Chicago to the Lake County Forest Preserves.

The sculpture will be on permanent display at the forest preserves' Greenbelt Cultural Center in North Chicago, according to a release.

"Cool Globes" program, which Abbott sponsored, featured sculpted globes. Each globe is five feet in diameter, on which artists from around the world applied their designs to present messages and images on environmental issues such as climate change solutions.

After the exhibit ended, the artworks were sold in public auction to collect money for environmental education.

The Cool Globe that Abbott acquired and donated to the forest preserves, titled, "Nature, Nature, Raise Future Environmentalists" was created by Chicago artist Nancy Pochis Bank.

And Bonnie Thomson Carter, Lake County Forest Preserves president, is excited to have "Cool Globe" at the cultural center.

"This globe's message of inspiring children and their families to care for and enjoy the outdoors together connects very strongly with our agency's mission," Carter said in a statement.

For the past 25-years, the law firm of Salvi, Schostok & Pritchard P.C. has been a name you can trust in Lake County. While you've come to know us as the law firm that has successfully represented thousands of Illinois residents in their catastrophic personal injury and wrongful death cases, we are equally proud to be a good corporate citizen—an employer of hard working local residents and financial supporter of numerous Lake County community groups and organizations.

You don't have to go far to find us. While we have grown into a nationally recognized law firm with cases across the county, our headquarters is still located down the street in Waukegan, and all of our name partners live in Lake County. You can still pick up the phone and speak personally to Patrick Salvi, Michael Schostok or David Pritchard at 847-249-1227 to discuss the merits of a possible case.

We remain committed members of our community, and we thank you for 25-years of trust in us.

Fire safety for the holidays

The holiday season is upon us. Aside from the usual religious observances, shopping sprees and cold temperatures, this time of year also brings forth decorations, lights, trees and candles. And although it is a joyous time and people should not be shy about celebrating, they do need to be careful.

Decorative candles and Christmas trees can be a source of home fires.

Each year, fires during the holiday season injure more than 2,600 people and cause more than $930 million in damage, according to the U.S. Fire Administration. The agency offers some valuable safety tips at its Web site, www.usfa.dhs.gov.

For example, the site gives advice on how a tree should be selected: The trunk should be sticky. Also, don't place a live

Christmas tree near a heat source, don't leave a live tree up for more than two weeks, and make sure that the tree stand is filled with water.

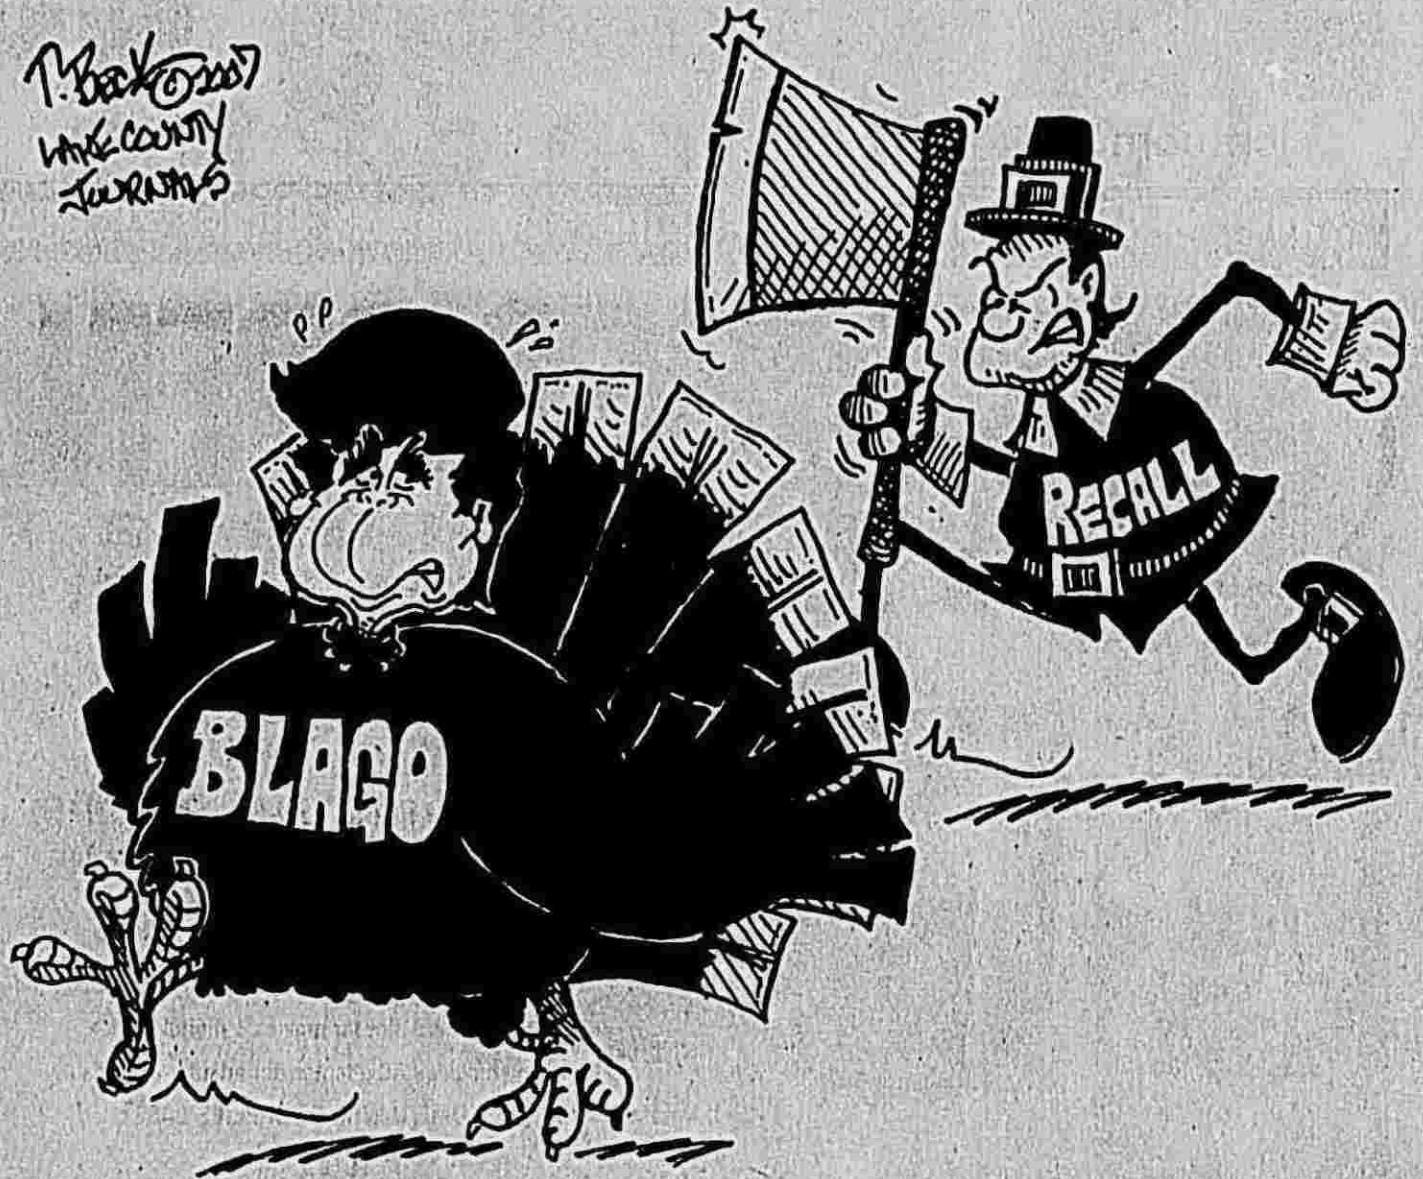

And as for candles, State Farm Insurance has an extensive section on candle safety at its Web site, www.statefarm.com/learning/be_safe/home/learning_besafe_athm_candles.asp.

Much of the information is common sense; some of it is pretty interesting. For example, the site discusses wick placement and the differences between paper, cotton and zinc-based wicks and why it matters.

The holidays are meant to be enjoyed and celebrated.

Traditions, trees and decorations are one way to express that yourself, but remember to be careful.

School funding bill top priority for Sullivan

State Rep. Ed Sullivan Jr., R-Mundelein, asked Gov. Rod Blagojevich in a recent release to immediately sign legislation needed to release the education dollars approved in the new state budget.

The General Assembly approved budget implementation legislation more than a week ago, but Blagojevich has not signed it, leaving local school districts continuing to wait for state funding promised in August, according to the release.

"The Governor told school officials, told the press, told everyone that he was eagerly awaiting passage of this legislation so he could sign it and release the fiscal year 2008 funding increases for our schools," Sullivan said in a statement. "Now the Governor has the legislation we passed, and he's sitting on it. It doesn't make any sense."

Among other measures, the budget implementation legislation contains the $400 for each pupil increase in general state aid approved in the general state aid budget, as well as an increase in special education personnel reimbursement.

It also includes provisions to ensure that no school district will receive less in state aid dollars than they received last year, according to the release.

"Our schools were promised this funding in August, but for months House Democrats refused to allow a vote on the legislation," Sullivan said in a statement. "Now after we've finally won that battle, the Governor is holding it up. Meanwhile, our schools are struggling to pay their bills and meet their monthly payroll."

Sullivan can be contacted through his District Office at 506 E.

Hawley St. in Mundelein or by calling 847-566-5115.

Challenger challenges

Randi Scheurer, Democratic Party candidate for the 8th Congressional District, filed a legal objection recently with the State Board of Elections.

The objection is to disqualify Jonathan Farnick's petition to appear on the Feb. 5 primary ballot as a second challenger to the incumbent Melissa Bean, according to a release.

"Mr. Farnick did not turn in the required number of valid signatures to qualify as a candidate," Scheurer said. "Running for Congress is no small thing. It takes a big commitment to do it right."

In its release, the Scheurer campaign claimed that Farnick fell short by more than 200 signatures after removing names that were not registered voters at the addresses listed in his nominating petition.

Scheurer said that she and a campaign worker met with Farnick at the beginning of the petition period, to see whether they could reach agreement on which one of them should challenge Bean.

Ed Sullivan Jr.
State Rep. from Mundelein

"He [Farnick] told me then, and has since repeated in public interviews, that he did not even intend to run a real campaign," Scheurer said. "That is completely unacceptable. We want a real candidate, to give Democrats a real alternative to a totally unacceptable Republican-Lite incumbent."

Scheurer claimed Farnick's views on the issues appear to be the same as hers.

"What good does that do?" She asked. "That would only help the incumbent. We want Democrats to have a clear choice."

The Scheurer campaign turned in more than 2,300 signatures on her nominating petition, outstripping even the number submitted by the incumbent Melissa Bean, according to the release.

No CTA bailout

To the editor:

I don't understand the bailout of the Chicago Transit Authority. When the Regional Transportation Authority was voted in, I didn't have any issues as I occasionally use Metra and pay the going fare.

But, I do not understand nor support any state funding for basically a Chicago transportation system. The people who utilize the system must be responsible for its support. I am troubled by interviews of CTA riders who said that the fare increase would make it too expensive for them to utilize public transportation.

Perhaps these individuals should live and work in a collar county and have to buy a car, pay insurance, maintenance, parking and current fuel charges.

Threatening "doomsday" at the 12th hour implies that CTA management has little grasp of fiscal reality. Service cuts and price increases should have occurred over time rather than at the last minute. Is there anyone at the CTA who reviews the annual budget and understands the concept of a monetary shortage?

CTA management should be replaced because it is incompetent. Better still, privatize the CTA and have the people who utilize the service, pay the price for support (like the tollway system).

I don't want to support the CTA through my state tax dollars.

Liberal congresswoman

To the editor:

When it comes to her votes in the U.S. House, 90 percent of the time, U.S. Rep. Melissa Bean, D-Barrington, drops to her knees and kisses the hem of Nancy Pelosi's skirt, in obedience to her orders.

It's amazing.

She represents a moderate to conservative district, but casts her vote as if she represents the 8th District of California (Pelosi's San Francisco-based district) instead of the 8th District of Illinois. She says that she is a moderate.

Yet, she voted ultra-liberal almost 90 percent of the time. And in return, Pelosi runs her fundraisers.

She voted to cut and run in Iraq.

She voted against the successful surge in Iraq.

She voted for taxpayer-funded free medical care to 25-year-old "children" of families making $63,000 a year, who can afford private insurance.

And she's the proud recipient of $80,000 in donations from MoveOn.org. She also promises to increase taxes, but voted against ethics reform in the House.

She's voted against new drilling for oil and new oil refineries, so you can blame her for high gas prices, too.

The voters of the 8th District need to be represented by people who share our values, not a Pelosi sock puppet.

Recent housing bust mirrors '80s scandal

I started thinking when I read about the financial collapse of Neumann Homes, which appeared to have a successful development in Antioch and in other areas of the Midwest. If that large company went under, what is the real state of the housing economy?

I thought, too, of the many innocent victims who might have been duped in the nationwide "housing boom to bust" by unscrupulous lenders. It is predicted somewhere near two million homeowners might face foreclosure of their mortgages within the year.

It's like déjà vu all over again. In the 1980s, it was the savings and loan scandal, the worst in the country's history.

The bailout was said to cost $1.4 trillion dollars, all laid on the shoulders of American taxpayers. Now, it's the sub-prime mortgage scandal.

Will the government ever learn a lesson from past scandalous practices? I ask because the present scandal would not have happened if the government hadn't turned a blind eye toward the ugly mess.

We tend to hear warning for the government about scam artists taking advantage of us. They warn us about the get-rich-quick schemes pitched to citizens, more often the elderly.

Those scams are penny-ante compared to the ones maneuvered by big-time scam artists wearing pin-striped suits. The savings and loan scandals were manipulated by board-room executives with the blessings of bi-partisan politicians.

They offered their customers easy loans at cheap costs, and it all sounded so good, until the roof caved in.

The savings and loan debacle was tragic because the government was at fault on both ends. On the front end, it deregulated banks, so there was no regulation and oversight. On the other end, the government guarantees were kept in place.

That meant that the savings and loans were able to make risky loans because the government would cover their losses. Did they ever? Taxpayers covered their hides.

This time, during the housing boom, there are similarities to the savings and loan scandal. Just as the savings institutions offered high-risk loans, the sub-prime, non-bank mortgage lenders offered very high-risk loans. At least this time the new scam artists aren't federally guaranteed after their financial misadventures. But, you never know.

You've seen the pitch. One hundred percent financing, no money down, interest only loans, no credit check, no income verification, low rates - initially, that is. It amounts to a signature-only loan.

What a deal! Get in line and get your keys to your dream house. Millions got in line and, for many, the dream has become a nightmare.

For the sub-prime lenders, at least for a long while, it was a win-win money maker. The buyers, not too long after a teaser low mortgage payment, were forced to pay substantial increased payments, so high that they couldn't "cut the mustard." They became victims of a "bait and switch" scam. They were forced into foreclosure.

For the lender, not to worry. The prices of homes continued to escalate, so they took control of the same property and used the same scam.

I guess that the sub-prime lenders thought that this merry-go-round big money scheme would last forever because property values continued the meteoric rise. But, all good things come to an end.

The housing market took a major slide and it continues on that slippery slope. Now, the schemers are feeling the pinch. I don't feel sorry for them or the Wall Street financiers that subsidized their scams.

I do feel sorry for the many victims of this sub-prime scandal.

It's about time that the government does its job to protect citizens from the big-time scam artists.

John Matijevich writes a weekly column for the Lake County Journals.

Uncommon doctor.

For Dr. Mike Peters, saving lives is a way of life.

When he isn't in the Lake Forest Hospital Emergency Department treating patients, Dr. Mike Peters can be found volunteering with the Lake Bluff Fire Department. He joined the department shortly after 9/11. Like many doctors at Lake Forest Hospital, community involvement for Mike is a way of life.

It's that special relationship between medical staff and community that makes Lake Forest Hospital and its uncommon doctors different from the rest. One more reason why an independent survey named Lake Forest Hospital the 2007/08 #1 Consumer Choice in Lake and Kenosha Counties for best doctors and best overall quality for the third consecutive year.*

Thaddeus Rex roars into Grayslake Dec. 2

Thaddeus Rex, a nationally recognized children's song-writer, comedian and book nut, will perform a fun children's show at College of Lake County on Sunday, Dec. 2 at 2 p.m. in room C 005 (C Wing Auditorium) on the Grayslake campus.

Rex left his segment on Indiana's Emmy Award-winning PBS show "The Friday Zone" to write, record and perform full time. Recognizing the role of books in his own development, he passionately endorses the fun of reading and the power of imagination through a combination of upbeat songs, infectious rhythms and hilarious comedy.

His first CD, "Martian Television Invasion," won the prestigious National Parenting Publications Awards Honors award and the Children's Music Web Awards' Best Song 2004. According to Time Out NY Kids, Rex's 2006 CD release, "We Wanna Rock" "...is reminiscent of David Bowie (with) flashes of Monty Python, Dr. Seuss and Shel Silverstein."

In 2007, Rex won the Film Advisory Board's Award of Excellence and the National Parenting Center's Seal of Approval. Blending the energy of rock with the sensibility of folk, Rex's special brand of rock songs, interactive stage show and contagious energy have earned him a loyal following. For more information, visit www.thaddeusrex.com.

Tickets for this family-friendly show are $5 or the donation of one new or gently used book per person. Donated books will be given to the Lake County Reach Out and Reach Program (www.reachoutandreach.org). Tickets can be purchased at the door. For more information, call 847-543-2287.

Learn about the Paralegal Program at CLC

Learn what it takes to begin a paralegal career at information sessions sponsored by the College of Lake County Paralegal Studies Program. At four sessions offered in November and January, potential students will learn about the paralegal profession, the job outlook and CLC's paralegal certificate and the Associate in Applied Science degree. They will also meet the faculty and other students.

There continues to be a high demand for paralegals in Lake County, according to Gayle Miller, department chair. Students who graduate from Illinois community college paralegal studies programs have a high success rate in finding jobs; 94.9 percent of graduates responding to a survey were employed after graduation.

Information sessions will be held on the following dates in room T 117 on the Grayslake Campus, 19351 W. Washington St.:

- Wednesday, Nov. 28 from 10-11 a.m. and from 7-8 p.m.
- Saturday, Jan. 12, 2008 from 9-10 a.m.
- Tuesday, Jan. 15, 2008 from 7-8 p.m.

CLC students can earn either an Associate in Applied Science degree or a certificate in paralegal studies. The certificate requires only 21 credit hours and is designed for students who already have an associate's or bachelor's degree. The A.A.S. degree in paralegal studies requires 63 credits. For more information, contact the Business Division Office in room T 102 on the Grayslake Campus at (847) 543-2041 or visit www.clcillinois.edu/dd/divn/bus.asp.

Spring semester classes at CLC begin Jan. 22. For registration information, visit www.clcillinois.edu or call (847) C-O-L-L-E-G-E.

Auditions for 'The Importance of Being Earnest' on Dec. 3 and 5

Actors from the community are invited to audition for the College of Lake County Theatre Department's spring production of the classic Oscar Wilde comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Rehearsals will begin Jan. 14, 2008. Performances are scheduled for Feb. 22 to Mar. 1, 2008. Rehearsals are held Monday through Thursday evenings (with the occasional Friday evening) until technical rehearsal week. Actors should make sure they have these dates and times open before auditioning.

Auditions will be held on Dec. 3 and Dec. 5 at 6:30 p.m. in the Studio Theatre of the James Lumber Center for the Performing Arts on the CLC Grayslake campus. Actors need only attend the Monday, Dec. 3 or Wednesday, Dec. 5 audition, not both. (Auditions originally scheduled for Dec. 4 were moved to Dec. 5.)

Actors should bring an acting resume (if they have one) and prepare a two-minute memorized monologue from any comedy written before 1900. Callbacks will be held on Thursday, Dec. 6 from 6:30-10 p.m. The play's director, Craig Rich, is looking for four women and five men for the cast. Copies of the play are available at the College of Lake County Library/LRC circulation desk for in-library reading.

Rehearsals will begin Jan. 14, 2008. Performances are scheduled for Feb. 22 to Mar. 1, 2008. Rehearsals are held Monday through Thursday evenings (with the occasional Friday evening) until technical rehearsal week. Actors should make sure they have these dates and times open before auditioning.

Hailed as the funniest play in the English language, Wilde's brilliant comedy of manners follows the antics of two bachelors as they pursue true love and the perfect cucumber sandwich. Both men take the alias of "Ernest" in order to capture the hearts of two young ladies who are convinced they could never love anyone who was not named Ernest. When the men discover that maintaining double identities is more challenging than they expected, comic mayhem ensues. Sparkling dialogue and a surprising plot combine in this dazzling masterpiece.

For audition information, contact the CLC Communication Arts, Humanities and Fine Arts division at 847-543-2040 or call Craig Rich at 847-543-2567.

During 2006-07, the College of Lake County Theatre Department attracted 7,324 audience members to 31 performances of five high-quality productions featuring talented CLC students as well as seasoned actors from the Lake County community. For more information on the performing arts at CLC, visit www.clcillinois.edu/tickets.

Patricia Hedstrom Scholarship Fund established

A new scholarship fund for College of Lake County students has been established by the CLC Foundation, thanks to a $196,840 gift from the estate of Patricia J. Hedstrom, a long-time assistant to retired Illinois State Senator Adeline Geo-Karis of Zion.

Three scholarships per semester will be awarded, starting in fall 2008. The Patricia J. Hedstrom Scholarship Fund is designed for graduates of Lake County High Schools who demonstrate financial need and who have grade-point averages no higher than 3.0 out of 4.0. Each scholarship may cover tuition costs up to 15 credit hours and may also be used for fees, books and other expenses.

"It is apparent that Patricia Hedstrom truly had a heart for education and for assisting 'average' students in their pursuit of their educational goals," said CLC Foundation Executive Director William L. Devore, CFRE.

Historical society presents area railroad history

HIGHLAND PARK - Highland Park Historical Society hosts on Thursday Nov. 29 at 7 p.m., "Crossroads of the Nation: The Hidden History of the Railroads of Illinois" presented by Simon Cordery. The saying, "a hog can travel non-stop from coast to coast, but a person must change in Chicago," confirms the Windy City's status as the hub of the American railroad system. But Chicago is only one facet of the fascinating history of Illinois railroads.

Simon Cordery, railway historian and historical advisor to the National Railroad Hall of Fame, explains the expansion of the railroad industry in the Land of Lincoln, demonstrates how the Prairie State fits into the pattern of national railroad development, and explores the national political significance of the history of railroads in Illinois. All aboard!

Simon Cordery holds a PhD in History from the University of Texas at Austin and is currently Assistant Professor of History at Monmouth College. He has received several awards and fellowships for his research projects, and has been the Historical Advisor to the National Railroad Hall of Fame Project in Galesburg, Illinois, since 2002.

"Crossroads of the Nation: The Hidden History of the Railroads of Illinois" will be at the Highland Park Public Library Auditorium 494 Laurel Avenue, Highland Park, Illinois. For further information, contact the Highland Park Historical Society at 847-432-7090 or hphistorical@sbcglobal.net. Admission is free.

The Highland Park Historical Society's mission is Preserving Our Past for the Future. The museum and research facilities are housed in the Jean Butz James museum, a landmark Victorian Italianate home built in 1871 by the Highland Park Building Company.

'The Holiest of Nights' puppet production to be staged on Dec. 9

On Sunday, Dec. 9 at 4 p.m., the premiere performance of "The Holiest of Nights," a Christmas story featuring The Pater's Puppets and the United Protestant Church Chancel Choir, will be held in the UPC sanctuary, 54 S. Whitney St.

The community is invited to attend "The Holiest of Nights," which features UPC youth using marionettes and hand, rod, scarf and shadow puppets. The production uses a Biblically-based script that was written and is being directed by Rev. Fred Berchtold, a UPC member, retired United Methodist pastor and a member of Puppeteers of America and the National Storytelling Network.

CCU introduces new online banking solution with account opening capability

Member-owned credit union available
24 hours a day at the click of a mouse

WAUKEGAN — Consumers Credit Union (CCU - $457 M, Waukegan, IL) recently introduced its new Online Banking solution. The new web banking platform was implanted to enhance security while increasing user options. These options include customizable features, online account opening and user-defined "E-Alerts" to help Members better manage their accounts. Security enhancements include strengthening the credit union's Multi-Factor Authentication (MFA) process and password requirements.

"Hardly a day goes by without hearing about an internet scam or problem with web-based identity theft," said Sean M. Rathjen, President of the Member-owned credit union. "Consumers Credit Union is dedicated to providing Members with secure access to accounts while enjoying their online Banking experience. Our new security measures also improved our ability to serve Members online, including the ability to open deposit accounts and fund them online."

End-users were the primary focus of the new enhancements, continued Rathjen. "CCU's online banking solution was designed to offer Members a superior online experience. Website users can open deposit accounts right from the comforts of their home and fund them from a variety of sources, including their current financial institution, by using a credit card or transferring the money from an existing CCU account." Accounts that can be opened online include Certificates of Deposit, Savings, Money Market and Rewards Checking Accounts.

Home Banking users can now change their login to a "name" other than their account number to offer additional identity theft protection. Other features include E-Alerts, online check reordering, and online stop payments. Members can set up E-Alerts to be emailed or text messaged to them based on conditions and criteria the user sets up, such as available balance, balance above/below a certain level, certificate maturity, check cleared, next payment due and personal alerts.

For more information about the new online banking solution at Consumers Credit Union, please contact Sean M. Rathjen, CCU President, at 847-782-4670. CCU is Member-owned, with offices in Waukegan, Mundelein, Round Lake Beach, Gurnee, and North Waukegan and online at www.myconsumers.org.

More than 200 Catholic lay people honored for exemplary service

Hainesville woman from
St. Gilbert Church an honoree

CHICAGO — Francis Cardinal George, O. M. I., Archbishop of Chicago, presented the 2007 Christifideles Awards to 216 area Catholics at the annual Archdiocesan Award Ceremony, Sunday, Oct. 7 at Holy Name Cathedral in Chicago. Cardinal George conferred 150 Christifideles

Awards on 216 Archdiocesan Catholics who have demonstrated a personal, ministerial renewal and responsibility for the Church's life at the parish level. These awards are named after Pope John Paul II's Apostolic Exhortation, Christifideles Laici, on the role of the laity in the Church's mission to the world.

Mrs. Kay Karrigan, of Hainesville, was the Christifideles Award honoree for St. Gilbert Church in Grayslake, Illinois. Mrs. Karrigan attended the ceremony at Holy Name Cathedral and received her award from Cardinal George. St. Gilbert Church is located at 301 E. Belvidere Road, Grayslake, Illinois.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

This is to inform you that there is a possibility you may be contacted by someone trying to scam you. The scammers use plays such as offering to pay you a "processing fee" for depositing checks and sending a percentage back to them. These checks are FAKE and YOU will be held liable for repaying the funds to the bank.

Typically the scammers will contact you via email or via a phone relay system for the hearing impaired so you don't know where they are calling from or what they sound like.

Recently arrests were made in the Netherlands, Nigeria & Canada with fake checks worth more than $2.1 billion dollars. The average victim of this scam loses $3000 to $4000.

Please Be Cautious. For information on how to report a scam, go to: http://www.ic3.gov/

This is the Internet Crime Complaint Center and is a partnership between the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) & the National White Collar Crime Center.

Deadline is Tuesday at 5 pm for line ads, 2 pm Tuesday for Display Ads. Call (800) 589-8237 or fax to (815) 477-8898 for pricing information.

NOTICES

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

This is to inform you that there is a possibility you may be contacted by someone trying to scam you. The scammers use plays such as offering to pay you a "processing fee" for depositing checks and sending a percentage back to them. These checks are FAKE and YOU will be held liable for repaying the funds to the bank.

Typically the scammers will contact you via email or via a phone relay system for the hearing impaired so you don't know where they are calling from or what they sound like.

Recently arrests were made in the Netherlands, Nigeria & Canada with fake checks worth more than $2.1 billion dollars. The average victim of this scam loses $3000 to $4000.

Please Be Cautious. For information on how to report a scam, go to: http://www.ic3.gov/

This is the Internet Crime Complaint Center and is a partnership between the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) & the National White Collar Crime Center.

Renew your view with Window Medics

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

A foggy thermal pane window doesn't mean paying up for new glass. Window Medics has a better solution, and at half the cost of glass replacement.

Owner Alan Rosenbaum, who has 18 years experience in the construction business, said the Window Medics process addresses the culprit behind window fogging—moisture caused by "solar pumping".

Heat from sunlight causes the window's glass panels to expand and push air out through the semi-permeable seals; then the window cools in the evening, drawing in moisture-laden air. Eventually, the silica desiccant in every thermal pane window loses the ability to absorb condensation and the window fogs up.

Backed by a 20 year parts and labor warranty, the Window Medics process restores your windows to their original clarity.

Alan said a tiny hole is drilled in a bottom and top corner of the window. Then the window's inside surface is rinsed with an environmentally safe solution and dried out. Next one hole is sealed and a special one-way valve is installed over the other hole. This valve allows moisture to be expelled while keeping new moisture out.

Not only does the Window Medics process save on replacement costs, but also energy costs, since dry air is a much better insulator than wet air. Alan said the Window Medics process could restore "95 to 96% of a window's original 'R' Value."

Window Medics is also able to test your other windows for signs of failure. Windows with accumulated moisture can then be repaired before fogging occurs.

In addition, Window Medics will replace glass, repair or replace screens, and supply that hard-to-

Widen your wallet with energy-efficient windows

(NAPSA)-Windows provide views, lighting and ventilation, but can also let in heat and cold. Old, drafty windows can have a dramatic impact on heating bills and make air conditioners work two to three times harder. Luckily, new advances in window and glass technology make it possible to capture beautiful views while still maintaining control over heating and cooling costs. As household spending on energy continues to rise, now is the time to reduce energy use in your home. Start by using this energy efficiency checklist for windows to help save money and increase the overall comfort of your home.

- Perform quick and easy tasks to evaluate the energy-saving potential of your windows: Touch the window and feel if it is close to the room's temperature. Hold a lighted candle or lighter in front of the window. If the flame flickers, consider replacement.

- Explore the type of window most suitable for your climate and needs. Contact the Efficient Windows Collaborative (EWC) at www.efficientwindows.org to compare annual energy costs for different window options based on a typical house in your region.

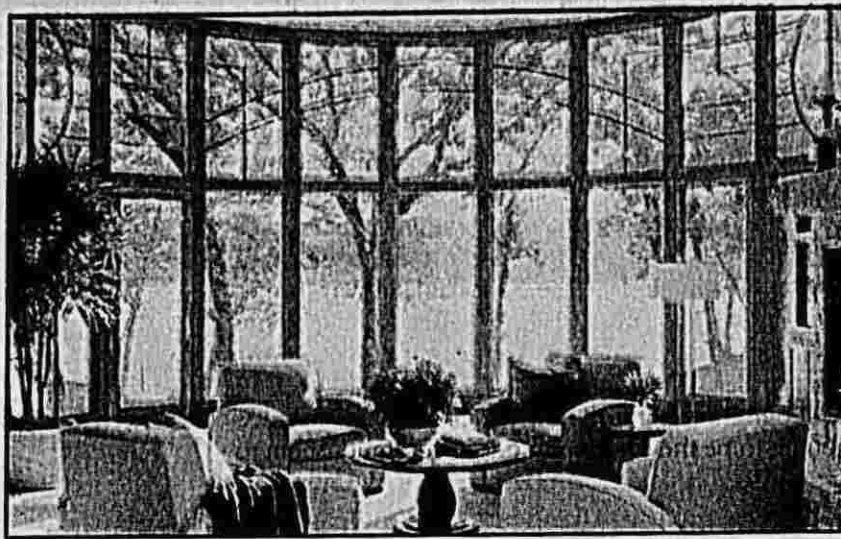

- Learn how glass and frame options can offer improved energy efficiency:

1. Dual-pane, low-emissivity (Low E II) glazings allow warm winter sunlight into your home while filtering out harsh summer light.

2. Wood and clad wood windows provide excellent energy efficiency because they have a built-in thermal barrier to protect your home's interior against extreme temperatures.

3. Frames manufactured with Ultrax(r), a pultruded fiberglass material, deliver superior thermal performance because they expand and contract at the same rate as glass.

- Select an EWC member manufacturer that delivers energy-efficient solutions. Two excellent resources are Marvin Windows and Doors (www.marvin.com) and Integrity Windows and Doors (www.integritywindows.com), both of which offer a wide array of energy-efficient options.

Windows with low-emissivity glazings can reduce heating and cooling costs.

- Select a window that qualifies for the Energy Star(r) rating in your region. These windows meet strict energy efficiency guidelines set by the Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Department of Energy.

Hints for used-car buyers: Avoiding odometer fraud

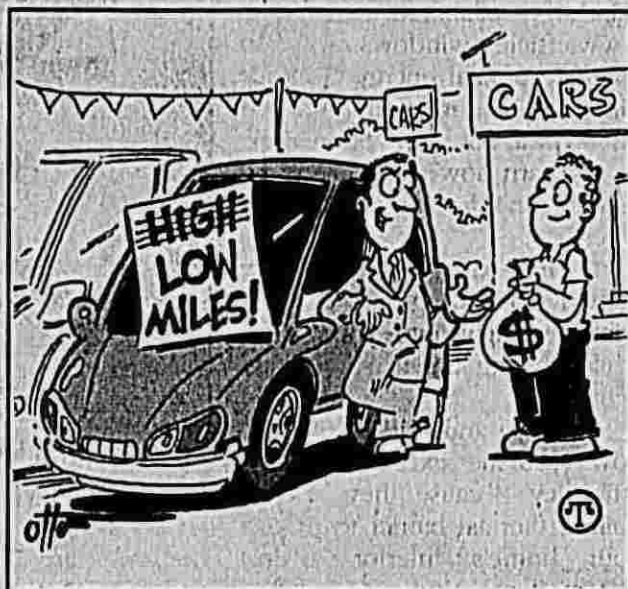

(NAPSA)-Used-car buyers could avoid being taken for a ride if they watch out for odometer fraud. Odometer fraud—or the illegal act of rolling back a vehicle's odometer to make buyers think it has fewer miles than it actually does—costs consumers billions of dollars annually. In fact, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) estimates the crime leads to the fraudulent sale of more than 450,000 cars every year.

Equally troubling is that digital odometers, once thought to be the solution to odometer fraud, seem to actually be easier to tamper with than traditional odometers.

"Unscrupulous people using relatively inexpensive software and devices—actually legal for recalibrating faulty odometers—can reprogram digital odometers," explains Larry Gamache of Carfax. "The value of a car can drop by as much as $5,000 if odometer fraud is detected."

Fortunately, there are ways to protect yourself from odometer fraud:

- Ask to see the vehicle's title and compare mileage on it with the vehicle's odometer.
- Compare the mileage on the odometer with the mileage indicated on the vehicle's maintenance inspection records. Also, search for oil-change and maintenance stickers on windows or door frames, in the glove box and under the hood.
- Request a Carfax Vehicle History Report to check for odometer discrepancies in the vehicle's history. If the seller doesn't have a report, you can use the car's VIN number to order one online.
- Check that the numbers on the odometer gauge are aligned correctly. If they're crooked, contain gaps or jiggle when you bang on the dash with your hand, you may want to walk away.

- Examine the tires. If the odometer shows 20,000 or fewer miles, the car should have the original tires.
- Look at the wear and tear on the vehicle—especially the gas, brake and clutch pedals—to be sure it seems consistent with and appropriate for the number of miles indicated on the odometer.

Protecting yourself from uninsured drivers

(NAPSA)-Even though it may be against the law, more drivers than you realize have no auto insurance. The Insurance Research Council reports that about one in seven at-fault drivers in a collision with another vehicle will be uninsured.

According to Steve Cox, vice president of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, what happens to the insured victim after this type of accident can be upsetting and expensive. Instead of the at-fault driver's auto insurance policy covering the costs of the victim's vehicle repairs and replacement rental car, it ends up being the victim's responsibility to pay for everything.

Since uninsured motorist coverage is not obligatory in every state, it can be the insured driver's own responsibility to make sure to include this coverage on his or her auto insurance policy.

Underinsured drivers are another problem. These are drivers who have only the minimum state-required limits of liability on their auto insurance, which may not necessarily provide enough coverage to adequately compensate others involved in the accident.

"Despite the fact that you are the victim if an uninsured driver slams into your car, you are obligated to pay the deductible and your auto insurance will be used to cover repairs, as well as other expenses," said Carolyn Gorman, vice president of the Insurance Information Institute, a nonprofit education organization.

For example, since the other driver's insurance will not cover a replacement rental car, you could be stuck without transportation while your car is being repaired or you are waiting for authorization to get a new one. But, if your policy includes replacement rental car coverage, which is only a couple dollars a month, you can get a rental car right away.

Since the average car is in the repair shop for two weeks after an accident, renting a car can be very expensive. Based on the average daily rate for a rental car, it can end up costing more in most cities to rent a car for one day than for a full year of coverage.

Gorman added that many drivers think they are well prepared to deal with an accident, but not many of them have ever read their insurance policy. "Taking just a few minutes once a year to read your policy or talk to your insurance agent can go a long way."

'Enchanted'

• Movie critic Jeffrey Westhoff says that "Enchanted" is a classic Disney tale with a modern twist of reality. And, thanks to strong acting, the characters are believable both as cartoons and in the "real" world.

'This Christmas'

• Holiday-movie clichés and a predictable story line make "This Christmas" a bit disappointing, but humorous dialogue and a talented cast help the audience forget those weaknesses and enjoy a few holiday laughs, says movie critic Jeffrey Westhoff.

A new town to play in

Westfield Hawthorn opens play area for children

By DANI SCHWEIGERT
dschweigert@nwnewsgroup.com

Westfield Hawthorn Shopping Center in Vernon Hills might have just opened Playtown, a new play area for children, on Nov. 10, but Vernon Hills resident Lola Yao and her daughter Jessica Shen, 20 months, have already stopped by several times.

"I bring her to a Gymboree class here," Yao said. "So we stop by after that."

Yao sat on a plush green couch that surrounds Playtown, cradling Shen in her arms. But it wasn't long before Shen was ready to take off and explore what Playtown has to offer.

And she had plenty to choose from. Playtown is filled with climbing structures shaped like a fish, a frog, a lady bug, a turtle, cars, and a boat. There also is a bridge to slide on and a log to climb through.

Want to hit the town?

What: Playtown, a new play area for children

Where: Westfield Hawthorn Shopping Center, 122 Hawthorn Center in Vernon Hills

What it offers: Soft climbing structures, interactive toys, comfortable seating, and a dining area

Rules: Children must be less than 42 inches tall; no shoes are allowed; no food is allowed; no drinks are allowed.

For more information: Call 847-362-2600, or go to westfield.com/hawthorn/

Deanna recently brought her son Brittain, 4, to Playtown for the first time.

"Last week, we saw the cars, so we had to come back," she said. "The weather is getting cold, and there's really nowhere to go, so it's nice to have this."

Brittain seemed to agree and wasted no time getting acquainted with his surroundings. He spun blocks with various mix-and-match images and checked out his reflection in a distorting mirror. But, he said, his favorite part was the cars.

While playing is an important aspect of childhood, learning to interact with others also is important, Deanna said.

"Kids don't interact unless you bring them to places like these," she said.

Providing an area where children can socialize was just what Westfield Hawthorn had in mind when creating Playtown, said Nicole Kneeland-Woods, marketing director for the shopping center.

"We wanted to create an area for kids to play who are 7 [years old] and under," she said. "And we wanted an area where parents could visibly see their children at all times."

The area where Playtown is used to feature the Imagination Castle. The castle was taken down at the beginning of the summer.

"It was time for a change," Kneeland-Woods said. "We wanted to bring something back to the community. We're a family-friendly center, and we want to not only make the shopping experience better, but pleasant as well."

Get the facts

- The Imagination Castle that used to be where Playtown is was taken down at the beginning of the summer, and new escalators were installed. Construction took several months to complete.

- It took seven days to build Playtown, which had its grand opening Nov. 10.

- Playtown is about 75 feet long and about 30 feet wide.

- Playtown is cleaned twice a day for 10 minutes each time. Playtown has a tire-like floor that makes cleaning quick and easy.

'Enchanted' a dream come true

By JEFFREY WESTHOFF
sidetracks@nwnewsgroup.com

Who needs "Shrek"? Disney's animators have poked fun at their heritage since "Aladdin," and the studio spoofs itself like never before with "Enchanted."

"Enchanted" opens as a cartoon, emulating the look of Disney's classical era. For the first 10 minutes, "Enchanted" could be mistaken for a lost feature made sometime between "Cinderella" and "Sleeping Beauty."

The lovely Giselle (voiced by Amy Adams) lives in a forest cottage, where the local wildlife gladly help with the household cleaning and occasional dressmaking. After Prince Edward (James Marsden) rescues Giselle from a troll, the two sing a duet and plan to wed the next day.

Queen Narissa (Susan Sarandon), who is both a witch and the prince's jealous stepmother, doesn't think the kingdom is big enough for two queens. So she shoves Giselle down a well and "to a place where there are no happily ever afters."

Seconds later, a flesh-and-blood Giselle climbs out of a manhole in Times Square.

She soon is rescued again, this time by single dad Robert Philip (Patrick Dempsey) and his young daughter, Morgan (Rachel Covey).

Robert thinks Giselle is delusional, but doesn't have the heart to kick her back out on the street.

The concept of cartoon characters crashing into the real world has been done before, but seldom with such cheerful, vibrant energy. Giselle believes the real world operates like her animated fantasyland.

Her cartoon logic is unwavering. When Robert says he has problems communicating with his fiancée (Idina Menzel), Giselle says, "You should sing to her."

To clean Robert's messy apartment, Giselle leans out the window and musically calls to the local fauna. In New York, unfortunately, that means rats, pigeons, and cockroaches. They do the job anyway in an amusing, if somewhat revolting, spoof of "Snow White."

The level of humor in Bill Kelly's script is more sophisticated than you would expect for a PG-rated comedy aimed mostly at children. Robert is incredulous to learn Giselle would marry Prince Edward less than 24 hours after meeting him.

Conversely, Giselle doesn't understand Robert's duties as a divorce attorney. She has always believed the only words that follow "I do" are "happily ever after."

Edward soon emerges in Times Square to find his beloved. He brings with him Pip, Giselle's loyal chipmunk sidekick transformed into a CGI character who can squeak but no longer speak, and Nathaniel (Timothy Spall), supposedly the prince's attendant, but really the evil queen's spy.

Eventually, the queen also makes the transition from animation to reality, but "Enchanted" never quite gives Sarandon enough to do.

Director Kevin Lima ("Hercules") maintains an upbeat attitude, and cinematographer Don Burgess ("Forrest Gump") gives us the sunniest New York this side of Sesame Street.

"Enchanted" is at its brightest during a sprawling musical number in Central Park where Robert is mystified that every passerby can sing the chorus to the song Giselle is making up as she goes along.

Marsden provides comic relief as the likeable but shallow prince, and Dempsey is fine as the skeptic who slowly finds himself believing in true love (though not necessarily with his fiancée).

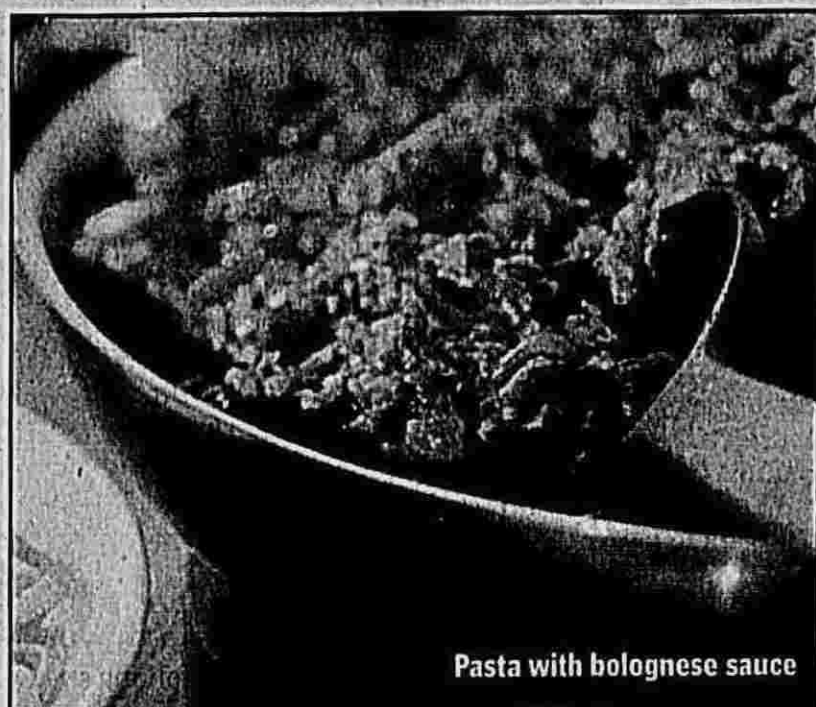

But "Enchanted" would be more grim than Grimm if not for Adams' marvelous performance. From her wide and sparkling eyes to her delicate yet fluid movements to the way she elegantly enunciates her dialogue, Adams indeed personifies a classic Disney princess.

While it might be easy to play this kind of a role as a joke, it is difficult to commit so wholly that the character's emotions become believable.

Adams' performance is the kind that deserves an Academy Award nomination, yet seldom gets one because of Oscar's prejudice for heavy-weight drama. But Adams has been nominated before, for "Junebug," and maybe in a year, with few surefire contenders, her Oscar dream will come true.

Pasta with bolognese sauce

Taste a souped-up sauce

By JEAN KRESSY
editorial@relish.com

Thirty-five years ago, before the fastest way to a meal was a cup of Ramen noodles, college students made Bolognese sauce. Of course, that's not what they called it, but no matter. The pots of hamburger-grade ground beef, canned tomatoes, and whatever else was on hand were quick and easy variations of sauces that Italian cooks have been serving over pasta for ages.

An authentic Bolognese (named for the Italian city Bologna and sometimes called a ragu, from the French word ragout, a hearty stew) is a savory conglomeration of chopped ham, beef, pork, chicken livers, vegetables, and wine.

Done the right way, Bolognese takes at least 3 1/2 hours to simmer; according to Italian culinary expert Marcella Hazan, Bolognese cooks say it can only be made in their kitchens.

As much as we would have liked to fly to Bologna to cook a pot of sauce, it was out of the question. And so, we decided to do the next best thing. Without leaving home, we made a deliciously meaty Bolognese in only 1 1/2 hours.

It has many of the traditional ingredients — ham, pork, vegetables, wine, and milk — and is perfect for cheese ravioli or any pasta.

Our sauce is a souped-up version of what students once made on their hot plates, and it's not as instant as Ramen noodles. But it still leaves us wondering why they traded their bowls of spaghetti Bolognese for Styrofoam cups of flavored noodles.

Pasta with bolognese sauce (Serves 6)

Ingredients

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped carrot
- 1 pound ground pork
- 4 ounces minced country ham
- 1 cup dry white wine
- 1 (28-ounce) can crushed tomatoes
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup whole milk
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 6 cups hot cooked fusilli or other long pasta

Directions

Melt butter in a large skillet, add onion and carrot, and sauté until tender. Add pork and ham, and cook for 5 minutes. Add wine, and cook until absorbed. Add tomatoes, salt and pepper, and simmer, covered, for 1 hour. Add milk, garlic and parsley and cook 15 minutes longer. Serve over pasta.

'This Christmas' packed with clichés

By JEFFREY WESTHOFF
sidetracks@nwnewsgroup.com

'This Christmas'

Genre: Drama

Writer and director: Preston A. Whitmore II

More information: Rated PG-13 for comic sexual content and some violence; running time is 117 minutes

"This Christmas" is a holiday film with much goodwill, but just as much predictability.

This story, written and directed by Preston A. Whitmore II, centers on the Whitfields, an upper-middle-class African-American family from Los Angeles.

This holiday will be the first in four years that all of Shirley Whitfield's (Loretta Devine) children will be home for Christmas.

Shirley's six children all call her Ma'Dere (short for "mother dear"), which has a secret or hidden agenda and individual issues that are dealt with throughout the film in a humorous manner.

The story reaches the predictable point where the Whitfield family's unity solves all its problems.

If Whitmore's sense of structure and dramatic development is clunky, his sense of character is convincing. Living up to the film's oft-stated theme, the family is its strength.

Spirited 'Sparrow' soars

By TOM WITOM
thomaswitom@yahoo.com

"The Sparrow," written by Chris Mathews, Jake Minton and Nathan Allen, has piled up accolades since its premiere in early January by the House Theatre of Chicago at Viaduct Theatre in Chicago.

The inventive play, directed by Allen, then moved to the Steppenwolf Garage stage, where it was a sellout. And now, the two-hour production, remounted under the auspices of Broadway in Chicago, is stirring new audiences at the Apollo Theater.

It's a fantastical show that capitalizes on what theater does best. Its talented, youthful 13-member cast – some in multiple roles – transports audiences to another dimension using music, dance, and a simple but highly effective set that puts the imagination into high gear.

The less known in advance about the plot the better.

But it's an involving story about a girl with paranormal powers who has returned after a 10-year absence to the small town where she was raised.

Carolyn Derfin is commanding in the lead as the withdrawn Emily Book, who finds herself weighed down by a ton of emotional baggage. Yet she manages to shrug it off, and her performance soars (and so does she) as a willowy Sparrow cheerleader rescuing a fellow student from an ill-conceived stunt.

Several scenes lead to whimsical song-and-dance sequences such as during a science class when the students begin dissection of a fetal pig or during a key basketball playoff game.

Ultimately, however, Emily, the high-flying Sparrow, loses her superhero status as knowledge of her hidden powers comes to light, and the play reaches a jarring, if inevitable, conclusion.

Derfin gets solid backing from Paige Hoffman as Jenny, the perky class president, and Cliff Chamberlain as the popular biology teacher.

Clever use of visuals enhances the show, including framed photos and dramatic video snippets.

European Market offers old world flavor

By: LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

European Market, located in Liberty Plaza just off Route 176 in Wauconda, brings the best of Old World flavor to the area.

The grocery store offers a complete range of European foods, including an enticing deli stocked with homemade Polish, German, and Italian specialties.

Owner Barbara Babinski said the 6,000 square foot store is a taste "of home" to the surrounding European community. Barbara, born and raised in Poland, is a pharmacist and speaks fluent Russian. She said she opened European Market seven months ago because of the growing number of Polish, German, and Russian people moving to the suburbs.

The store's interior is reminiscent of a European square, with frescoed walls, market canopies, and hanging plants. Everything is well organized and spotless, making the shopping experience a true pleasure. Add to that the reasonable prices and the European Market should be the first stop on any shopping trip.

Salads, soups, appetizers, and hot entrees like the market's signature Polish pierogies, potato pancakes, or stuffed cabbage rolls are made fresh daily in the store's kitchen. The menu changes daily, so there is always something new to try.

There are daily specials on the many lunchmeats and cheeses at the deli counter. Barbara said the fresh Polish sausage is very popular. Sandwiches and party platters can be made to order. Barbara added that they also offer catering packages, which include meats, as well as hot and cold side dishes.

And don't forget to pick up some homemade pastries and breads. There are over two-dozen kinds of fresh bread and rolls, along with tasty treats for your sweet tooth.

In addition to a being a fully stocked grocery, the European market also sells a wide variety of European beers, wines, and specialty flavored vodkas.

Finally, thanks to the friendly service, everyone should feel at home shopping at European Market. So enjoy a taste of the Old World at prices that can't be beat.

Jami Kunzer

Tricky love

For the first few months, I think I expected to wake up one morning and hear, "Uh, yeah, Jami, gotcha! Gotcha good! This was just a test of your maternal system. Just havin' some fun. Wanted to see how far we could push it, ya know? Funny, huh? By the way, you were kinda falling ..."

But here I am, about six months pregnant with my second set of twins, still somewhat sick, still slightly in shock, and still wondering some days how I'm going to make it until bedtime.

Ready or not, these babies are coming. God willing, Baby A and Baby B will join their sisters, 18-month-old twins Anna and Lilly and nearly 4-year-old Summer.

As long as my sanity holds, I'll also once again be writing an EveryMom blog at NWHerad.com. You can go there to feel better about your parenting skills or birth control methods, to share stories, or to offer some desperately-needed advice.

I took a break from both the column and the blog several months ago because of extreme morning sickness. I heard from some wonderful readers who offered words of support and kindness when I needed them most. For that, I'm forever grateful.

My husband and I thought our family was complete. Several pregnancy tests told us otherwise.

As much as I fear the future, I know I've been blessed. We're not sure exactly where we're going to put these babies when they come home, or if we'll ever truly sleep again. We do know they'll definitely be loved.

Columnist Jami Kunzer is the mother of Summer, 3, and 18-month-old twins Anna and Lilly. She writes a column and a blog for the NorthWest News Group. To read her blog, go to NWHerad.com. Contact Jami at jkunzer@nwnewsgroup.com or at (815) 459-4122.

End of the line

As the last buzzer rang on Carmel's football team Nov. 17, an end of an era had come. Football season, at least for our schools, is finally over. From the August heat to the excruciating mid-November cold, the fall season has ended. Even with the sadness of another season now in the past, there was plenty to celebrate.

Carmel Corsairs

The freshest memory in our minds, the Carmel Corsairs turned relatively sub-par expectations into one of the deepest runs in the state. At 11-2, coach Andy Bitto and crew turned a limited offense into a powerful football machine.

Typically, Carmel's triple option scheme limits traditional tailbacks in terms of total yardage, but running back Geoffrey Fields had multiple 100-plus yard games to his credit. Fields, coupled with quarterback David Venegoni made quite a one-two rushing punch on the field.

Grant Bulldogs

As one of the most complete IHSA Class 6A teams in the state, Grant packed just about as much success as they possibly could have into the 2007 season. Grant took the North Suburban Conference Prairie Division title and went undefeated in the regular season.

The Bulldogs won their second playoff game in the school's history, and the most single-season wins in school history.

With a 10-1 final record, the 2007 Bulldogs will go down as one of the greatest Grant teams to ever.

Wauconda Bulldogs

After years of frustration on the gridiron at Wauconda, the Bulldogs finally broke through to the playoffs. And they did it in impressive fashion.

Racing through the regular season with a 7-2 record, the Bulldogs were poised to make a deep run in the IHSA Class 5A football playoffs. While that didn't happen, Wauconda finally turned around the Bulldog tradition.

You can't mention the Bulldogs without the name Brad Wisniewski. As one of the most powerful runners in the state, Wisniewski racked up almost 1,600 yards in the season including multiple 200-plus yard games.

Daniel J. Patrick is the sports editor for the Lake County Journals. Write to him at dpatrick@nwnewsgroup.com. For more, read his blog, "Lake County Sports: A real local blog by the REAL Dan Patrick," at LakeCountyJournals.com/blogs/lakecountysports.

Prep players prove fantasy status

Local running backs rack up their stats

By DANIEL J. PATRICK
dpatrick@nwnewsgroup.com

In an age of fantasy sports teams, numbers can mean everything to sports fans. Even in high school, no college recruiter would ever take notice without numbers that would drive a fantasy team crazy.

Here in Lake County, we have a select few running backs that would have been stellar on any 2007 prep fantasy team. Wauconda's Brad Wisniewski, Round Lake's Ray Bryant and Antioch's Cameron White all had spectacular seasons in 2007. Here are some numbers about three of Lake County's most talented tailbacks.

Brad Wisniewski - Wauconda

Standout Performances:
Sept. 29 - 257 yards, three touchdowns vs. Lakes
Sept. 14 - 240 yards, three touchdowns vs. Antioch

No Lake County football discussion is truly complete without bringing up Wisniewski. He ran for more than 1,000 yards in each of his four years as a varsity starter, but his 1,549 yards and 23 touchdowns this year didn't come close to his numbers in 2006.

"What can I say about Brad that hasn't been said before," Wauconda coach Glen Kozlowski said. "He will always work for you, week-in and week-out. He's one of those players that comes around once in a lifetime."

Brad Wisniewski

Multiple 200-plus yard games, multiple three-plus touchdown games, Wisniewski was a complete player who catapulted the Bulldogs into contention this season.

Now that the Bulldogs will have to move on without him for the first time in four years, Wauconda has moved into uncharted waters.

But that won't prevent him from taking his talents into Division I-A college ball next year.

Corsairs meet their defensive match

Carmel, Lake Zurich quarterbacks' passing games null and void in semis

By DANIEL J. PATRICK
dpatrick@nwnewsgroup.com

MUNDELEIN - Carmel's defense-first scheme finally met its match against Lake Zurich in the IHSA Class 7A football semifinals Nov. 17. Lake Zurich ended Carmel's state championship bid with a 17-7 victory to end the Corsairs' season at 11-2.

How did the Corsairs lose on their home field with their defensive-minded scheme in full bore? Because they met an opponent with a scheme similar to their own.

Both teams had very little luck through the air as injured Carmel quarterback David Venegoni went 0-for-5 with one interception, while Lake Zurich's Bobby DeLeo finished 0-for-4 with a pick of his own.

With passing basically out of the question, Carmel's offensive duties fell on Geoffrey Fields, while Lake Zurich went with Jon Janus.

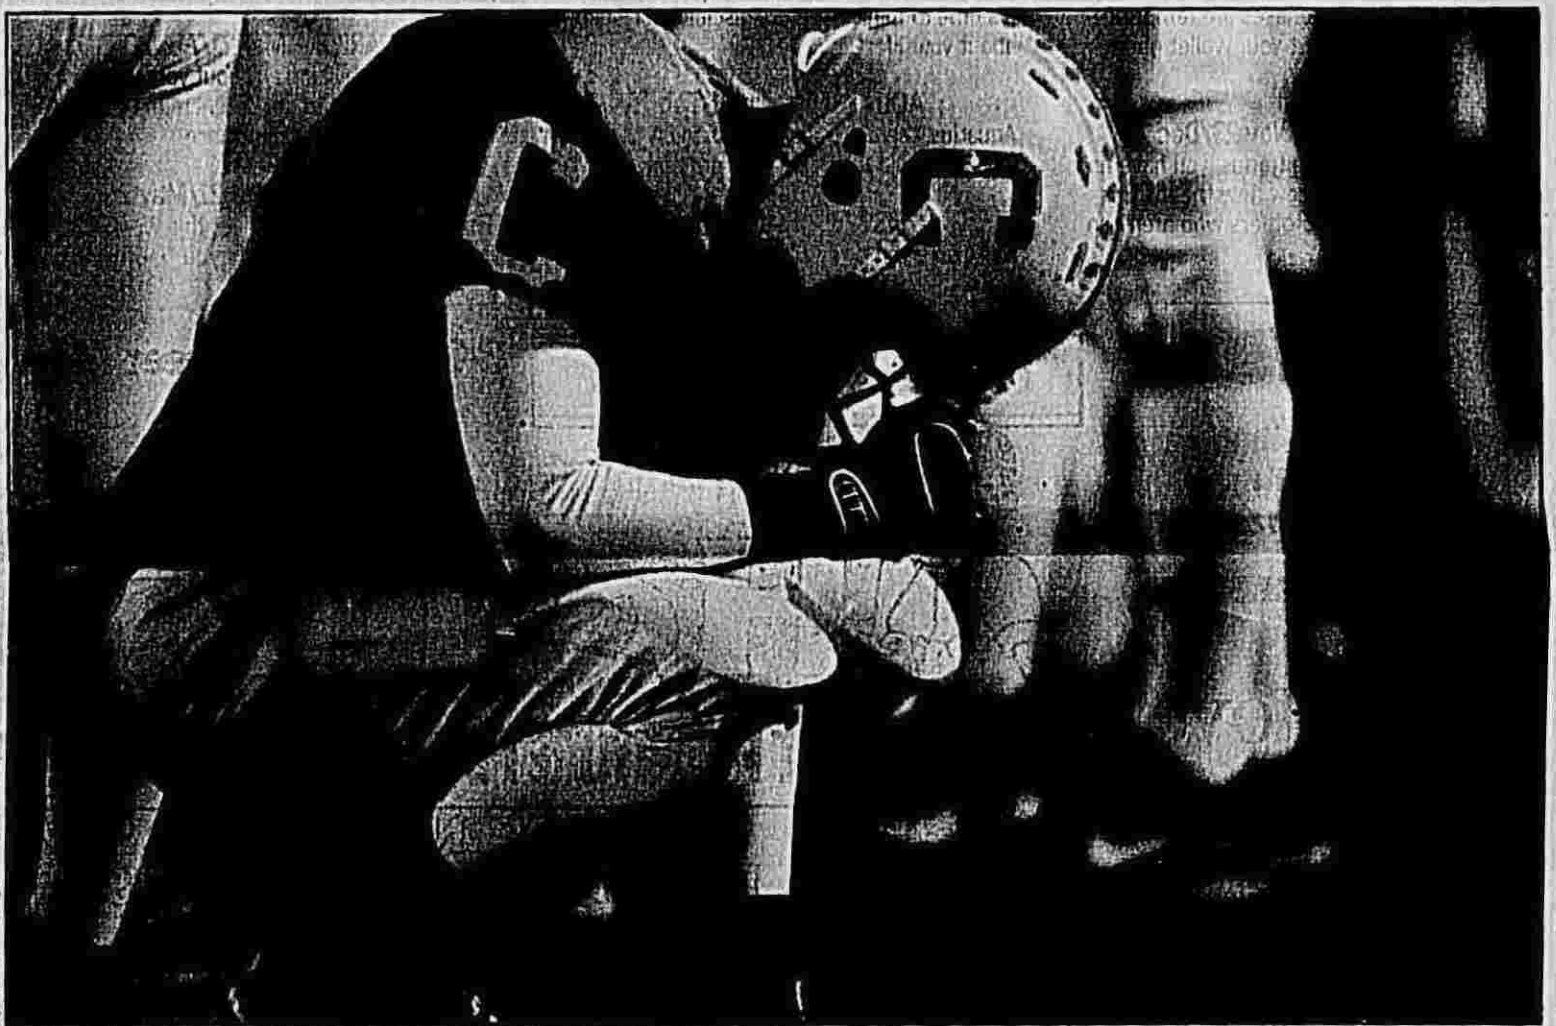

On the ground, both teams had similar nights as well. That is, until Lake Zurich tailback Janus took the ball on a 98-yard ride for a touchdown. On the night Janus ran for 158 yards.

Carmel finished with 125 total rushing yards on 43 plays, with the team's only score coming from Fields. He rushed for 120 of Carmel's 125 yards. But Lake Zurich turned in 265 yards on 43 plays for the win.

"Without that big run, we both had similar nights," Carmel coach Andy Bitto said of Janus' touchdown. "But we gave up too many big plays and we couldn't convert on the big plays of our own."

When the big plays came for the Bears, they certainly hurt the Corsairs. Midway through the second quarter, Carmel's special teams pinned the Bears at the one yard line with a kick from punter Jake Sinkovec. But one play later was Janus' 98-yard touchdown run, which resulted in a 14-0 Bears lead.

Carmel saw more heroics from Carmel's Alex Salvi reacts to a 17-7 season-ending loss during the IHSA Class 7A semifinals Nov. 17. With the win, Lake Zurich advances to the state finals in Champaign against Wheaton Warrenville South.

Sinkovec as he picked off a Lake Zurich pass and for a touchdown. But, like so many other chances for the Corsairs, it floated away as the touchdown was called back on a penalty.

Facing a 14-point deficit in the second quarter, Carmel was able to put points on the board with Fields' 1-yard touchdown.

But the Bears answered with a 22-yard field goal with 1:36 left on the clock to secure the 17-7 win.

"The chips fell their way," Fields said. "The defense and special teams gave us some great chances, but we just couldn't finish."

Lake Zurich linebacker Brent Marks was pleased with the outcome, but was still impressed with the Corsairs, particularly Fields.

"The chips fell their way. The defense and special teams gave us some great chances, but we just couldn't finish."

Geoffery Fields
Carmel Corsair running back

The senior running back only had one run for negative yards out of 32 carries for 120 yards and a touchdown.

"That kid's a great running back," Marks said. "It seemed like every time he touched the ball, he was able to get positive yards."

But as impressive as Carmel's game was, the outcome was still the same; Carmel fell just short of a return to the state championship game.

"We had two short fields and a missed field goal and then there was the 98-yard run," Bitto said. "There are three or four big plays in every game that make the difference. In this one, all four went Lake Zurich's way."

Carmel ends its season at 11-2 while the 12-1 Bears will meet Wheaton Warrenville South in the IHSA Class 7A state championship game. It will be Lake Zurich's second-straight trip to the state championship game.

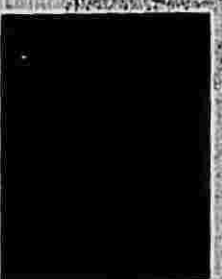

QuickHitters

Geoffery Fields

Geoffery Fields - Carmel

Carmel might have come up short against Lake Zurich, but you wouldn't be able to tell by the performance of senior running back Geoffery Fields. Fields ended his high-school career with 120 yards rushing on 31 carries in the 17-7 loss Nov. 17.

Sarah Boothe

Sarah Boothe - Warren

You knew that it wouldn't take long to see Sarah Boothe in the Quick Hitters. The Warren girls basketball phenom earned her most recent Quick Hitters title with 34 points and 16 rebounds in a 61-41 blowout of 20th-ranked Bogan Nov. 17.

Waukegan winners of Bulldog battle

Grant struggles at free-throw line

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

Grant opened the season with a forfeit win over St. Martin de Porres, who dropped out of the Deerfield Tournament at the last minute.

Grant then lost to Waukegan in the battle of the Bulldogs teams, 58-57.

Heather Reutsche scored 21 points for Grant in the loss.

"She [Reutsche] ran the point well and pushed the floor and played awesome defense," Grant coach Tom Oeffling said.

A 13-for-34 effort at the free-throw line likely did the Grant squad in.

Grant led by six points after three quarters, only to see Waukegan post a rally.

CJ Hill and Heather Chapman played well in reserve roles, Oeffling said.

Grant will battle host Deerfield at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 24 to conclude the tournament.

Round Lake 71, Rockford East 25

Round Lakes' troubles seem to be over as the Panthers destroyed Rockford East 71-25 in the Harvard girls basketball tournament on Nov. 15.

Labrenthia Murdock led with 16 points, while Amber

Phillips put up 10 points in the win.

Round Lake improved to 2-0 with the blowout victory.

Warren 42, Loyola 26: Sarah Boothe led the way with 21 points and 16 rebounds in a 16-point Warren victory over Loyola Academy in the New Trier Tournament.

Fellow Blue Devils Joree Green (seven points, six rebounds) and Lory Shaw (six points, six rebounds) aided Boothe in the win.

>> Girls Basketball: Mundelein Tournament

Showing their skills

Carmel plays for title

By STEVE PETERSON
speterson@nwnewsgroup.com

MUNDELEIN - With the 2007-08 girls basketball season still in its infancy, several area teams are showing its stuff at Mundelein's Thanksgiving Tournament.

Carmel, Grayslake North and Lakes were all in Mundelein duking it out with several other area teams.

Lakes inching toward first win

Lakes rookie girls basketball coach Elizabeth Hart-Hinkle saw some positives despite an 0-4 start at the Mundelein Thanksgiving Tournament.

The tourney concluded Nov. 21.

"It was a good start to seeing some games and things we need to fix," Hart-Hinkle said.

Senior Mandy Schellinger, a 6-foot-1 post player, scored 12 points as one of the tourney bright spots in a 62-28 loss to Prairie Ridge.

Carmel shaping up

Carmel coach John Ryan was pleased with how the defense helped his team gain three wins in at the Mundelein Thanksgiving Tournament.

There were some signs of progress on offense, and the defense was just as steady in a 38-24 win Nov. 17. Carmel gained a shot at the tourney title with the win.

Carmel met Mundelein in the title game.

Results were not available at press time.

Knights proving themselves

Grayslake North girls basketball coach Jim Sarver and the Knights came to the Mundelein Thanksgiving Tournament hoping to prove a point.

That point is that these Knights would not be an easy win for any team.

Their four opponents learned that at the tourney, where the Knights were 2-2 heading into the final round.

The Knights fell 52-45 to Vernon Hills Nov. 17.

Willingham, Weis in same boat

SEATTLE – Aside from the colors on his coaching wind-breaker Ty Willingham still looks the same.

Still has that same wide-eyed stare. Still has that same no-nonsense demeanor. Even the measured steps he takes on the Husky Stadium sideline are reminiscent of one of the three years he spent calling the shots at Notre Dame.

Unfortunately for the University of Washington, his current employer, Willingham also is posting the same type of disappointing records as he did under the Golden Dome, about 2,157 miles away.

So while a mention of the 53-year-old coach might be ammunition for the Charlie Weis critics back in the Midwest, he is a target for criticism here in the Emerald City. As different as Weis and Willingham might be, they would be great partners in commiseration this season, even though both coaches managed rare victories.

Kevin Kaduk

Struggles in Seattle

Since receiving an early dismissal from Notre Dame in 2004, Willingham's records have failed to improve. A fact that makes it hard to argue he should still be leading the Irish. In his three years in South Bend, Willingham went 21-15, a mark Weis finally reached with a 28-7 win over Duke Nov. 17.

With two games remaining in Willingham's third season at Washington, the soft-spoken coach is only 11-23. A 37-23 win against a plummeting California Nov. 17 helped brighten the picture, but at 4-7 overall and 2-6 in the conference, the team still resides in the Pac-10 basement.

Multi-touchdown games nothing new

• RUNNING BACKS

Ray Bryant - Round Lake

Standout Performances:

Oct. 19 - 290 yards, two touchdowns vs.

Lakes

Sept. 20 - 261 yards, four touchdowns vs. Vernon Hills

Last season, the name Bryant was well known in Round Lake, but it wasn't for Ray. Instead, Ray's older brother was the focus and Ray himself was working as a safety on defense.

While Ray kept his safety role intact for 2007, he also got a chance to show his skill as the number one running back for the Round Lake Panthers. That was a decision that coach Doug Moss definitely would not regret.

Over the course of the season, Bryant ran for 1,423 yards, including multiple 250-plus yard games. Bryant's recipe for success? Run, run, run.

During Bryant's explosive 290-yard game against Lakes, he ran the ball 41 times. Against Vernon Hills, Bryant got his 261 yards and four touchdowns in similar fashion, running the ball 44 times. Meanwhile, he played on both sides of the ball, moonlighting as a safety for the 1-8 Panthers.

"Ray Bryant's a great player, there's no doubt about it," Moss said. "He's the kind of kid that will go out there and work hard for every down and it shows with the kind of numbers he has."

How does he do it? If you ask Bryant, his answer is always very simple: "I just go out there and run."

Cameron White - Antioch

Standout Performances:

Sept. 14 - 210 yards, two touchdowns vs. Wauconda

Oct. 12 - 188 yards, one touchdown vs. Vernon Hills

Unlike many workhorse-type running backs in the area, Antioch's Cameron White had a way of racking up huge numbers without lots of carries.

Need proof? Against Vernon Hills, he put up 188 yards on 13 carries, good for 14.5 yards a carry. His game against Wauconda was a similar story with 210 yards on 17 rushes for 12.4 yards a carry and against Lakes, it was 8.9.

"I don't know if he is the best all-around running back I have ever seen, but all he does is make amazing plays," Antioch coach Brian Glashagel said after White's Vernon Hills performance. "He is just an incredible player."

White's numbers are even more impressive when tempered by his teammate Steve Lorenzini. Unlike most big name running backs that don't have to share time, White split his running back duties with Lorenzini, another talented back.

When Lorenzini put up 183 yards and three scores against Round Lake, White was limited to just 92 yards and two touchdowns of his own. And true to character, White averaged 7.1 yards a carry against the Panthers.

SHOP EARLY for Christmas

The holiday shopping countdown

Early start or last minute – retailers are ready for all shoppers

Family Features

"Black Friday" has long been regarded as the kick off of the holiday shopping season. However, now that retailers are unveiling their Christmas products earlier every year, and catering to the needs of late shoppers, the stores are filled with people in pursuit of the perfect gift anywhere between Labor Day and December 25.

In fact, according to the National Retail Federation, the number of "extreme" early birds and procrastinators has been on the rise in recent years. Last year, 40 percent of all consumers began their holiday shopping before Halloween, and 15 percent of consumers reported that they had not begun any of their shopping by December 5. As a result, retailers are updating their products, merchandising and marketing plans to meet the needs of these two very different sets of shoppers.

One clear example of how this has affected the retail world can be seen in the greeting card industry. Christmas remains the top card-sending occasion, with nearly two billion cards sent annually, and greeting card manufacturers have taken note of this evolving consumer demand.

"We have definitely noticed the trend of consumers pushing up the unofficial start of the holiday shopping season," said Heather Bentley, Christmas Program Manager at American Greetings. "In response to this, shoppers will start to see the cards in stores by November 1, and the complete holiday card line will be available before Thanksgiving."

"We have also enhanced our offering of convenience items like gift card holders for the late season shopper. And overall our holiday cards reflect a more conversational tone and generally sendable quality to help shoppers with multiple tasks to get in and out of the card aisle more quickly," Bentley said. *

The early bird gets the special

For those shoppers getting out before Halloween costumes even appear, remember: time is your friend. Holiday trend experts offer the following tips for taking advantage of the extra time you have given yourself to get everything done.

- Use that extra time to actually shop: Reward yourself by taking more time to peruse the aisles to find the perfect gift, card, wrap and accessories for everyone on your list.

This year you can enjoy spending some of that extra time in the greeting card aisle. American Greetings has new sound, song and light cards for the holiday, which feature seasonal tunes and bright, beautiful images to put anyone into the spirit. Because you are getting such a head start, you'll have time to listen to every sound, hum along with every song and smile at every festive scene that the cards offer before choosing your favorites.

- Enjoy the lack of traffic: Congratulations, you have ensured yourself the avoidance of long lines and crowded malls. Take advantage of your situation to actually enjoy your shopping experience in a leisurely fashion. Since you've given yourself the luxury of allowing for additional shipping time, you can even utilize the convenience of online shopping.

- Spread out your holiday tasks and hunt for bargains: Starting your holiday preparations early means that you'll have more time to commit to all of your various seasonal tasks. This includes sending holiday cards, grocery shopping, baking and cleaning. It also means that you can bargain shop for the essentials.

Make a list of everything you need to get done and then spread out your holiday chores as you go. Use down time to fill out greeting cards, bake and freeze on the weekends and pick up a few items for the big holiday meal every time you head to the grocery store. Take advantage of early sales and specials as you go.

- Solicit help: Make sure to get some help from your family and friends. Enlisting help for this busy time of year is essential. And since you are likely to be helping others as well, you will have an even bigger pool of helpers to choose from.

- Dress up your gifts: In addition to having more time to get everything done, the early bird also has more time to dress up their gifts. You took extra time to choose that thoughtful gift, so take care to make it look like it from the outside in. Accentuate any gift with a handmade attachment or other thoughtful touch. *

Procrastinators can still get it all done

Procrastinators usually are in the scrambling mode not because of short sightedness, but rather because they haven't had the time to get their shopping done. This year that isn't a bad thing, as retailers are becoming even more last-minute shopper friendly. Holiday trend experts have tips to make that mad dash to the holiday shopping finish line stress free.

- Make the best use of the time you have: Use modern conveniences and opportunities to get last minute gifts and cards out. Many busy professionals send cards to colleagues via inter office mail, or hand deliver gifts during pre and post season get togethers or office parties. In short, if you can put off buying the gift right this second, do so.

Few items are more cherished for a late-season shopper than a trendy gift bag, and this year's options have stylish finishings and details.

American Greetings has expanded its offering of generally sendable greetings to make it even easier to find the perfect card for any family member, work associate or friend. The greeting card company has also enhanced its newest boxed cards with stylish finishings and attachments.

- Escape the traffic: Try to take advantage of the usual extended hours and plan your shopping for earlier or later in the day. You will be able to eliminate a lot of the casual shoppers and those just "hanging out" by doing so, which will make your trip much more efficient.

- Take advantage of sales ... seriously: Just because you weren't able to get a jump on your shopping doesn't mean you will have to pay top dollar. Retailers, recognizing the trend of procrastination, are introducing late season sales to lure some of this growing market. So be sure to check online and in your newspaper to see what specials are being offered before heading out.

- Beg for help: Trying to get everything done at the last minute is difficult, trying to find the perfect gift for everyone with no time to spare, well that is just impossible. Ask friends and family members for tips to ensure that you choose the right color, size or style.

- Be craftier and flexible in your gift presentation: Trendy gift bags can add style to any present. Fun gift card holders instantly increase the personalization of a convenient gift card to a favorite store or restaurant. If all else fails, you can always head to the gift-wrapping station at your mall. Just make sure no one sees you. *

Managing credit a must during holidays

(MS) — When it comes to holiday spending, consumers are known for going a little overboard — be it in the spirit of the season or just poorly managing funds.

Part of the reason people overspend is due to the often misunderstood language included with each credit card bill they receive. Important information is often printed particularly small in the hopes that people won't, in fact, read their agreements and will fail to notice any changes in policy. With the credit card season upon us all, consider the following tips before putting it all on plastic over the next several weeks.

• Know your credit card limit and where you stand. In the past, people who charged a card that was over its limit would have to go through the embarrassing ordeal of being told their card was declined. These days, many credit companies have chosen to go a different route, allowing consumers to overcharge their cards and then face exorbitant fees and increased interest rates once the limit is exceeded. Before you leave the house and swipe your card, know exactly what your card balance is, how much you can spend before reaching your limit, and avoid exceeding that limit at all costs.

• Pay on time. Sometimes the day your bill is due each month changes. While it might be due on the 10th one month, the next due date might be the 8th day of the following month. This can, and often does, lead to late payments and late payment fees. A late fee is often in the neighborhood of $35. But a late payment also allows a company to invoke a penalty rate, which can be as high as 27 percent. In your agreement, it will likely say this rate can be issued after as little as one late payment, so don't just assume that since this is the first time you're late there will not be any penalties. Avoid these penalties by paying on time and knowing when your due date is each month.

• Avoid cash advances. Particularly during the holiday season, a cash advance can be very enticing. But cash advances should be avoided. Most cash advances will include a fee for the advance and a higher interest rate than the actual credit card, making the cost of a cash advance far more than it actually appears.

• Verify your charges. Verify any and all charges on your card by keeping your receipts and checking them against what appears on your statement. This will accomplish two things. First of all, you'll catch any fraudulent charges if they exist. Secondly, you can examine your spending habits, which may or may not be healthy.

• Don't get tied down. You can shop for a credit card just like you can shop for holiday gifts. Not all cards are the same, as some carry higher interest rates than their counterparts. Research companies, their interest rates and policies, and politely ask friends if they would recommend (or not recommend) any companies. Take the results of your research to your company and then negotiate a new deal with them or move to another company. *

Healthy eating seminar offered

Would you believe you can make impressive pre-holiday meals without compromising flavor or taste? Hear how you can put healthy food on the table and still have time to enjoy your family and friends during the holidays.

The "Healthy Holidays: Smart Eating Strategies" program will be presented Wednesday, Dec. 5, from 1-3 p.m. at the University of Illinois Extension, 100 S. Hwy. 45 in Grayslake.

"There are ways to stay on a healthy eating plan and squeeze in exercise even during busy time," commented Barbara Farner, University of Illinois Nutrition and Wellness educator.

Farner will show how to trim the fat and sugar from some favorite recipes.

"Certain flavors are associated with fall, winter or holidays, such as cranberries, apples and pumpkin – all good healthy food choices when combined with the appropriate ingredients," Farner said.

Original and altered recipes will be offered as handouts.

The class includes handouts, limited tasting and the cooking presentation for $10. Registration is required by Dec. 2 at 847-223-8627 or online at <http://web.extension.uiuc.edu/lake>. *

* Holiday Craft Christmas Countdown Calendar

(MS) — The excitement of the holiday season begins the moment the Thanksgiving parade sails on by. With the appearance of old Saint Nick on the tail end of that caravan, kids and adults alike start preparing for the arrival of Christmas.

To help mark the days and commence the countdown, Christmas calendars are popular this time of year. Here's how you can put your own creative spin on the concept, plus incorporate the idea of hanging stockings into the design.

This fun craft is based on an idea presented by Family Fun magazine and utilizes stray socks, mittens or pieces of scrap holiday fabric you may have on hand.

What You'll Need

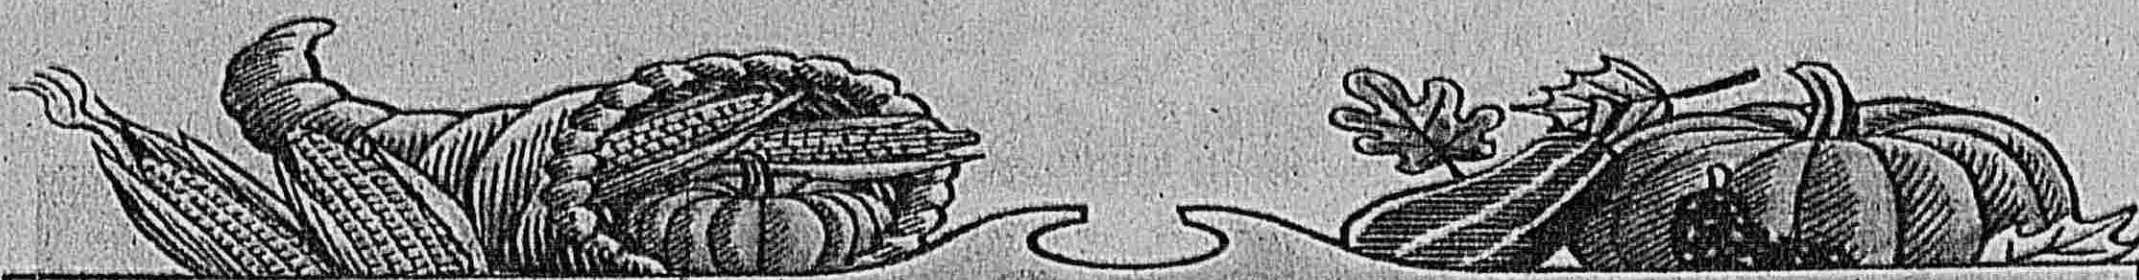

- 25 brightly colored socks, mittens or pockets sewn from fabric (or a mix of all three)
- 25 wooden clothespins
- 6-foot length of string, yarn or garland
- Small trinkets to put inside socks or creative message cards (ideas below)
- Push pins, tape or small photograph nails to hold the calendar in place
- Marker

Instructions

1. Using the marker, number each clothespin from 1 to 25.
2. String the 6-foot cord through the rings of the clothespins in numerical order.
3. Fill the socks/mittens/pockets with your treats.
4. Clip one item to each clothes pin.
5. Hang the "calendar" to a mantel, wall or within reach of kids eager to discover the treats inside.

Ideas for treats:

- small candy canes or candy bars
- coupons to get out of chores
- voucher for a car trip to see Christmas lights
- voucher for a Christmas movie night
- retail store gift cards
- a joke or puzzle per day
- gingerbread cookies
- an ornament to add to the tree
- voucher for making a donation to a charity *
